Cease-Fire Order Hoped Wednesday

Chief Negotiator Optimistic While Ridgway More Cautious In Outlook

SEOUL, Korea (UP)—The United Nations' top delegate to the Korean armistice talks opening Tuesday said tonight he hoped for a cease-fire by Wednesday.

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, U.N. Supreme Commander, warned, however, that "an agreement on an armistice must precede any cessation of hostilities," and indicated that he did not expect a cease-fire to come out of the first meeting.

Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy, 56-year-old commander of U.S. Far Eastern naval forces chosen by Ridgway as his chief negotiator with the Communists, said on his arrival here he hoped personally the conference would end with a cease-fire "the day after tomorrow."

Ridgway said in a press conference he had "no idea" how long it might take to arrange the cease-fire and said that only by actual performance at the talks can it be ascertained if the meetings are being held in good faith.

Ridgway flew here from Tokyo to establish temporary headquarters for the duration of the cease-fire talks. He plans to direct negotiations personally and

Royal Couple Sail Sept. 25 On Canada Tour

Will Board C.P.R. Ship At Liverpool

LONDON (Reuters)—Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh will sail Sept. 25 for their visit to Canada, it was announced today.

The Royal couple will sail from Liverpool aboard the Empress of France for Quebec.

The Canadian Pacific Railways Empress of France was formerly named the Duchess of Bedford. The four of the princess and the duke of principal centres of Canada from coast to coast will start about Oct. 1.

The Duke of Edinburgh, at present commanding the frigate Magpie in the Mediterranean, is due shortly to hand over his command. He will fly back to England July 21.

MANY INVITATIONS

Several organizations have invited the couple to visit the United States but it is not yet known whether they can accept. Meanwhile government officials at Ottawa are drafting a tentative itinerary for the visit and expect to hand it to the cabinet within the next few days.

Once approved, the itinerary will be forwarded to the Princess herself for consideration.

U.S. Still Plagued By Strike Action

CHICAGO (AP)—Strikes today tied up production of shrimp in Mississippi and blocked delivery of goods from 16 major New York bakeries. A back-to-work move in the Minneapolis hospital strike was clouded by refusal of four institutions to re-employ strikers. These were the walkout developments:

Pascagoula, Miss.—Governor Fielding Wright of Mississippi sought to settle the strike of A.F.L. shrimpers. The walkout arose over shrimp prices and fishing grounds.

New York—Mayor Vincent Impellitteri called a conference with mediators as the strike of 4,000 A.F.L. bakery drivers entered its second week. Issues include a 40-hour work week and a wage boost.

Minneapolis—Service employees of 10 hospitals were under orders of their A.F.L. union to return to work. The union charges the hospitals refused to abide by an arbitration settlement on wages and working conditions.

'Caddy' Mural For City Cafe

The legend of Cadborosaurus has grown into part of the permanent folk lore of Canada. Many tales of the mythical sea monster which appears along Victoria's waterfront from time to time have been advanced over the years.

Today it was announced that one of the most popular versions will be recorded in mural form in the dining-room of the Dominion Cafe, now being remodeled.

J. L. Shadbolt, one of the country's top artists from the staff of the Vancouver School of Art, will paint the mural.

The painting will be Mr. Shadbolt's interpretation of one of the old "Caddy" legends of Indian origin.

Saanich Parks Open

Fourteen Saanich parks and playgrounds today received hundreds of youngsters for the opening session of the supervised playground program. The program ends August 17.

Asks End Of War With Germany

President Truman today explains his proposal for end of state of war between U.S. and Germany to congressional leaders after handing identical letters on subject to House Speaker Sam Rayburn,

Warning Of Disaster Truman Moves Again To End Anglo-Iran Dispute

WASHINGTON (CP)—President Truman said today the British-Iranian dispute threatens a "collapse of oil operations" which would be "a disaster."

Truman offered to send Averell Harriman, his foreign affairs adviser, to Iran to help try for a settlement of the dispute.

"The time available is running out," Truman said.

In London Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison said Britain is "considering" asking the United Nations Security Council to order Iran to keep her hands off the British-run oil industry.

Morrison told the House of Commons this course might be followed if Iran positively rejected the recommendation of international court of justice to allow the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. to continue oil producing operations pending a negotiated settlement of the dispute.)

Truman made his offer in a message to Iranian Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadegh. The Iranian chief wrote him two weeks ago asking U.S. support for Iran's nationalization of its oil resources.

Truman said in his reply: "You know of our sympathetic interest in this country in Iran's desire to control its natural resources. From this point of view we were happy to see that the British government has on its nationalization."

At the same time, Truman said he still hopes that a way can be found for "British skill and operating knowledge" to continue to be used in running the strategically important oil industry.

Announcement of the offer of Harriman's services following reports that Truman was considering the transfer of Ambassador Loy W. Henderson to Iran from India.

Truman's proposal was contained in a note delivered to Premier Mohammed Mossadegh today by Ambassador Henry Grady.

But high Iranian sources said Mossadegh indicated Truman's offer will not be accepted because it came too late.

Mossadegh told Grady he would have to refer it to his cabinet.

CUT PHONE LINES

Reuters News Agency reported, meanwhile, that Iranians today cut the telephone line between the oil capital of Abadan in southern Iran and Basra, Iraq, where the manager of the British oil company has been operating from since he left Iran.

(And the company, Anglo-Iranian, announced in Abadan that 150 British technicians would be evacuated from the huge refinery there in the next 10 days—the first large-scale cut in the refinery staff. But officials said there will still be 1,000 Britons left in Abadan after the 150 leave.)

The Iran government radio said Foreign Minister Bacher Kazemi has informed U.N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie by cable of Iran's refusal to accept the Hague court's ruling.

Kazemi told parliament yesterday the court order was "fantastic and unfair."

At a mass meeting Sunday on the parliament steps, Chams Chantabad, bearded son-in-law of one of Iran's chief Moslem leaders, announced creation of a "national defense committee" and invited volunteers to sign up for a possibly holy war.

Britain, U.S. Act; Close Historic Era

From CP, AP and UP Dispatches

Canada will formally end the state of war between herself and Germany tomorrow or shortly after, authorities said today.

The cabinet is expected to pass an order-in-council authorizing publication in the official Canada Gazette of a proclamation formally ending a war which began in September, 1939, took 42,000 Canadian lives and cost this country billions of dollars.

Soon after that action Canada and the West German Republic will move to re-establish full diplomatic relations. Hon. T. C. Davis, the Saskatchewan judge who now is head of the Canadian mission to Bonn, will assume the title of ambassador.

Expected To Be New Envoy

In Ottawa, Dr. Werner Dankwort, now Consul-General, is expected to become the first post-war German Ambassador to Canada; he has been here for some weeks.

Canada's action in ending the state of war will roughly coincide with similar steps by her wartime allies, the U.S., United Kingdom, Australia, New Zealand and others. The way is expected to be left open for stationing of Canadian troops in Germany in peacetime because indications are it is Western Germany where the 27th Brigade will be posted this year or next.

Britain's announcement, communicated to Chancellor Konrad

Adenauer of the West German Government, ended the state of war nearly 12 years, effective at 4 p.m. today (11 a.m. E.D.T.). A total of some 50 non-Communist countries are to end the state of war which started in September, 1939, when Germany attacked Poland.

The allied occupation of Germany will continue.

In Washington President Truman asked Congress today to end the state of war between the U.S. and Germany.

Truman's request was made in identical letters to Vice-President Alben Barkley and House of Representatives Speaker Sam Rayburn.

Road Towards Independence

Truman said that ending the state of war "will give the German people a new demonstration of our desire to help bring them back to membership among the nations of the free world."

"It will represent another and logical step on the road which leads towards the eventual restoration of German independence," Truman added.

"The Soviet effort has been, instead, to cut the eastern third of Germany away from the rest of the country and to develop it as a province of the new Soviet empire," Truman added.

"As it became plain that we could not expect Soviet co-operation in rebuilding all of Germany as a self-respecting democratic and peaceful nation, we were forced to change our approach... we were joined in our efforts by the British and French governments."

"Together with them, we gave the German people under our jurisdiction the chance to create their own government..."

"Since its birth in September, 1949, this German government has shown steadily increasing responsibility and readiness to take its place in the community of free nations and to do its share toward building peaceful and co-operative relationships with its neighbors of the west."

33 Forest Fires Still Burning In Province

Sixteen forest fires were burning throughout the Vancouver Island and coast area of B.C. today and the hazard was increasing with continuing clear weather and higher temperatures.

Throughout the province as a whole, 33 fires were reported, most of them under control.

On Vancouver Island, the three fires near Campbell River, which have been of major concern to foresters for the last two weeks, were burning themselves out morning reports from the area said.

The number of fire fighters in this area has been cut from 750 to 350. Of this band, 300 are men recruited from nearby logging firms and 50 are B.C. forest service employees.

One new fire which broke out Sunday in the Langford district near Victoria was spotted early by the lookout station and was quickly extinguished by a jump crew before it became any real threat.

Eight blazes are reported in the Prince George district, but rangers say there is no danger of them spreading. Hazard in that district is low.

There are six fires in the Kamloops area, requiring the attention of 28 men. One of the fires resulted from a week-end lightning storm. General hazard in the district is light.

Two fires are burning in the Prince Rupert forest area, and 60 men are engaged in putting them out. The Nelson district reports only one fire, with hazard low.

Bread, Egg Prices Up Here Today

An increase today in the price of both bread and eggs sent sky-high living costs still higher.

Price of bread went up one cent to 14 cents per loaf. Bakers attributed the rise to increased cost of flour and other ingredients. They claimed that "we put it off as long as we could, but we finally had to raise the price."

One Grade A large egg now costs seven and one-twelfth cents. A price increase of two cents today raised the wholesale price from 76 to 78 cents per dozen, and retail price from 83 to 85 cents.

NEW PRINTING OF ADDRESS

"One of the highest listener ratings in our history," was the way CKDA station manager David Armstrong described Sunday night reaction to Times' editor Bruce Hutchison's convocation address re-broadcast.

Requests for copies of the speech kept CKDA's switchboard busy. A second printing is now under way and copies will be available on request to the editorial department of The Times.

Education Minister Straith announced over the week-end that he plans to send 500 copies to high schools throughout the province.

Former Victorian, Johnny Plant, To High Post In Atlantic Pact Force

OTTAWA (CP)—A Canadian was named today to one of the top posts in the Atlantic Pact air force in Europe.

To the R.C.A.F.'s Air Vice-Marshal J. L. Plant, C.B.E., A.F.C., 41, a native of Wales who was educated in Victoria and Vancouver, goes the biggest job yet given a Canadian in the drive to build up western Europe's defenses.

The defense department announced he will go to Paris to become assistant chief of staff for personnel and logistics at the headquarters of U.S. Gen. Lauris Norstad, commander of the Allied air forces in central Europe.

Gen. Norstad is building up the air component of Gen. Dwight Eisenhower's integrated force and will eventually have a Canadian air division of 11 fighter squadrons under his command.

The Plant appointment, effective Aug. 15, is a recognition of that fact.

Canadian army and air force

Air Vice-Marshal J. L. Plant

officers have been posted to the Eisenhower command in the last few months but they were well below the rank of Air Vice-Marshal, equivalent to the Army's Major-General.

To take over Air Vice-Marshal Plant's job as director of personnel at R.C.A.F. headquarters, Air Commodore F. G. Wait, C.B.E., 47, a native of Ottawa, is being promoted to Air Vice-Marshal. He now is deputy head of that directorate. Air Vice-Marshal Plant graduated in mechanical engineering from the University of B.C. and joined the R.C.A.F. in 1931. He commanded a coastal command squadron in Britain and Ceylon as well as two R.C.A.F. bomber stations in Britain during the war. He was commanding officer at Patricia Bay for a time before going overseas.

Son of Mrs. Laura Plant of Victoria and Ottawa, the Air Vice-Marshal attended Victoria High School and Victoria College before going to university.

His wife is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Lethaby, 79 Wellington Avenue, Victoria.

The Timid Soul : : : : : BY H. T. WEBSTER

ONE WOMAN'S DAY
By NANCY HODGES

SUFFRAGETTE ECHO

LONDON—Lord Pethick-Lawrence, to whom I alluded in Saturday's column, took my memory back to my girlhood days when, as a student at the University of London, I used to see the "suffragettes" in action in the vicinity of the Strand and Trafalgar Square.

For he presented me with a series of interesting articles, written by his wife for the Sunday Graphic, in which she vividly recalled the pioneers and outstanding events connected with women's emancipation and especially with the militant suffrage campaign between 1905-1914.

WENT TO JAIL

LADY PETHICK-LAWRENCE is an authority on the subject, for both she and her husband took an active and leading part in the campaign. Born in 1867, she was nearly 40 when, at Keir Hardie's suggestion, she then little band of militants sought her help. Her Cornish love of freedom, her passionate anger at injustice, her sense of shame at the humiliating status of women, all contributed to her decision to become treasurer of the new movement.

As a raiser of funds she became known as "the most seductive beggar in Britain." But, seductive or not, she paid a heavy dividend on her own account, going to prison no less than seven times for her active participation in militant practices, as well as taking part in the hunger strikes and suffering the very painful indignity of forcible feeding.

THEIR COMMON FAITH

NOW OVER 80, Lady Pethick-Lawrence still has the cause of women just as much at heart as ever, as her articles and utterances testify. She reminds us that the militant suffragettes were of all ages and drawn from all classes, all parties and all creeds. The common faith which inspired them, she says, was the conviction that they were fighting to win for women freedom to live their own lives and the power to protect themselves and their children from exploitation and oppression.

Among other brilliant women with whom she was closely associated in the leadership of the movement was Mrs. Pankhurst—whom I first met as a girl in London and again when she came to live in Victoria, on Dallas Road, after the First World War.

INVITED TO SPEAK

INCIDENTALLY, it was at Lord Pethick-Lawrence's suggestion that the Suffragette Fellowship invited me to be the guest speaker at a meeting to be held at Caxton Hall, London, on July 14 in celebration of the anniversary of Mrs. Pankhurst's birthday. I had, however, regrettably to decline, as I knew I would be back in Victoria by that time.

As this suggests, the valiant work of the "Suffragettes" is not forgotten. Nor is it finished, although they succeeded in getting women the votes, not only in Britain but, indirectly, in Canada and in other democratic countries as well.

EQUAL PAY EIGHT

AT THE PRESENT time British women members of Parliament of all parties—are fighting hard to get equal pay for equal work for women civil servants. But they are not getting much beyond pious, platitudinous promises at present. So much so that Lady Pethick-Lawrence, despite her age, recently rallied to their support with this trenchant message, in part:

"Members of the present Government are emphatic in their assurance that equal pay for men and women who do the same job is justice, but they put forward the same argument today (as they did when the women were seeking the franchise) that the country cannot afford to implement the principle that they believe in. They prefer the tacit admission that the country can only survive on the underpaid labor of women."

There is a familiar sound about that in Canadian ears, isn't there?

Opinion Varies
In Congress On
Korean TalksUltior Motive
Possibility Seen

WASHINGTON (UP)—Congressional opinion still varied today on the Korean truce talks, and American officials still studied the possibility they might be a smoke screen for other Russian moves.

While the Russian-prompted talks go on, State Department officials carefully studied the possibilities of Russian strategic moves in such trouble spots as Iran and Yugoslavia.

There was mild optimism that the talks would produce a cease-fire, but there was no disposition to believe that the political problems of Korea could be settled for a long time.

In Congress, Sens. Harry P. Cain, R., Wash., and Robert S. Kerr, D., Okla., took opposite tacks on the peace talks.

Cain said that a peace settlement at the 38th parallel would be a defeat for the United Nations. But Kerr retorted that a truce along the prewar borders of North and South Korea would be a victory.

Cain thought a truce at best would only be temporary. He warned that the Communists may use a truce to "regroup and build up" for another big offensive.

Kerr said that it is Red China that is suing for an armistice through Malik and the enemy's move showed that "we have whipped the hordes of Red China and have shown them that they cannot win anything by aggression."

Canada Plans
Savings Bond Issue In Oct.

OTTAWA (CP)—A sixth series of Canada savings bonds will be launched in October, Finance Minister Abbott announced today. Terms of the new issue will be announced later.

Mr. Abbott said the heavy purchases—totaling $1,700,000,000—in the five previous series "would in itself justify the new issue." The issues had encouraged more than 1,000,000 Canadians to save.

He said that personal savings are "doubly important" under present economic conditions and that the widest possible distribution of the bonds "is a necessary objective of national policy."

For this reason, the government plans a strong sales campaign, both in the field of sales to the general public through banks and—investment—dealers—and through the payroll savings scheme.

The five regional directors will be: Atlantic Provinces, Clyde R. Watt, Halifax; Quebec, Gerard Gingras, Montreal; Ontario, N. D. Young, Toronto; Prairies, Hugh A. Benham, Winnipeg; British Columbia, Lewis F. Worsley, Vancouver.

$32,000 For Bull

CALGARY (CP)—A record price for a purebred Hereford bull in Canada has been obtained by Arthur Crawford-Frost, owner of the Cawston Ranch at Nanaimo, who sold his herd sire, Dandy Domino 12th, to the Lazy River Ranches of Saratoga, Wyoming, for $32,000.

Report From Korea For CBC

CBC reporter Norman McBain of Montreal (standing) and operator Norman W. Eaves of Halifax recently left for Korea to obtain front-line reports and actuality recordings of the Canadian troops in action. They're shown here with a Magnecode recording unit like the one they are using in the battle areas. Their reports are heard on CBC News Roundup broadcast five nights a week at 7.15.

Korean Truce May See
Reds Seek Major ParleyObservers Think U.S. Would Reject
Any Conference Including Red China

LONDON (UP)—Top European diplomats said today they believe Russia will ask for a big five peace conference if the Korean cease-fire efforts are successful.

Their opinion is that fighting in the Far East will not flare up again once a Korean cease-fire is achieved. They said Russia has indicated by her own initiative that she has had enough of that tactic.

Russia's big five meeting would include Communist China and the Soviet would prefer to discuss not only an over-all Far Eastern settlement but German rearmament and American bases as well—if she could draw the agenda.

European observers think the U.S. would flatly reject any conference with Red China participating. European feeling is that American public opinion would revolt if the Korean war were concluded at the price of a Chinese diplomatic victory.

The Middle East is considered the most likely spot for any possible new and overt Russian pressure. Russia has played a waiting game in Iran, although a large-scale British military intervention there could easily bring Red army troops into northern Iran.

But Britain has demonstrated she will not risk such an action unless forced to the extreme.

Candy Ration
Up In Britain

LONDON (AP)—The Ministry of Food which gave housewives an increase in their meat ration Thursday, has added something for the kids. The candy ration is going up.

Starting July 15 an extra one-half ounce a week will be added to the present six-ounce sweets ration, an announcement said. The Ministry of Food said the meat ration—now approximately the size of one small chop a week—would be increased slowly until it is double the present amount by August.

It now is 10 cents worth of fresh meat. Card-holders also get five ounces of bacon a week. Most canned meats, cooked meats and sausages are not rationed.

Bus Driver
Negotiations
Start Monday

About 325 bus drivers and garage mechanics in Victoria will be concerned with wage negotiations to begin next Monday between the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway and Motor Coach Employees of America (A.F.L.-T.U.C.), and the B.C. Electric Company.

The union is to seek an interim wage increase of eight cents an hour because of the recent jumps in the federal cost-of-living index. When the union signed a two-year agreement with the company last February the living index stood at 175.2. The latest government index figure was listed as 184.1.

A union spokesman said increased living costs had absorbed half the 12-cent-an-hour pay boost company transportation division employees received earlier in the year. The scheduled negotiations cover altogether 3,000 workers, the majority of them being in Vancouver.

Mock Fight Rages Over Southern B.C.

Canadian Reservists Helping U.S. Forces Pound Mythical Invaders

ABBOTSFORD, B.C. (UP)—Royal Canadian Air Force reservists today were assisting U.S. forces in pounding a mythical invader which had "captured" Seattle and Port Angeles, Wash., and sent armored columns punching as far inland as Spokane.

The largest peace-time air exercises in Canadian history entered their second week today with an air armada of 75 Second World War Mustang fighters and Harvard bombers taking to the air from this reactivated Fraser Valley airfield.

Prime target of Canadian reservists from all over the Dominion were enemy strong points on Vancouver Island, where an imaginary invasion fleet from the "Alaska region" spewed ground forces supported by heavy tanks onto undefended beaches last week.

SEATTLE FALLS—Officers directing the exercises reported the "fall" of Seattle over the weekend and said the Boeing Airplane Co. plant and the Hanford atomic works were in "enemy hands" today.

Another "attack" on the Oregon coast threatened to surround Portland.

One intelligence officer reported a tanked force was "hammering" at the gates of Spokane, but said U.S. forces were preparing for counter-attacks.

Hostile forces on the Olympic Peninsula were reported "hanging" trouble crossing the mountains to the Grays Harbor area, after landings at Port Angeles. They were said to have come under fire from "concealed citizen snipers armed with deer rifles."

HOPE ON ALERT

The 2,000 R.C.A.F. reservists were blasting Vancouver Island installations today, but fighter squadrons were kept in reserve to intercept expected air-borne attacks on Hope and Kamloops, B.C., both rail junctions.

Vancouver Island defenders "lost" the pulp mill town of Port Alberni at the battle of Lost Shoe Creek, but were stoutly defending a north-south line, despite the fact that they were cut off from supplies and reinforcements by enemy subs patrolling the Strait of Georgia and Juan de Fuca.

Officers directing the exercises said the "enemy" would be hurled back into the sea before the maneuvers are completed at the end of the week.

ROYAL INVITE TO BALTIMORE

CAMP PICKETT, Va. (AP)—Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip while in North America have a definite invitation to visit the U.S. in Baltimore.

Brig.-Gen. William C. Purcell, president of the St. George's Society of Baltimore, said he had sent the invitation through Prime Minister St. Laurent. The general is on National Guard summer training manoeuvres here.

Public Hostile Over Killing In New Mexico

HOBBS, N.M. (UP)—A pair of cop-hating brothers who killed a city policeman and elderly store clerk were held in Roswell, N.M., today because of "public excitement" against them.

Assistant District Attorney Max Edwards said the pair—Speight F. Parks, 27, and his 22-year-old brother, Gene—were moved out of town Sunday for safe keeping.

The brothers are charged with murder in the slaying of Robert S. Butler, 68-year-old parking meter custodian, and his 63-year-old friend, Ira Grantham, a clothing store clerk.

The shooting took place in the business section of town when Butler attempted to arrest the brothers, whom police said were drunk and disorderly.

WOUNDED IN CHASE

Witnesses said the elderly officer was shot with his own gun when the two brothers resisted arrest. Then Speight Parks, who came out of the struggle with the gun, turned the weapon on Grantham who was standing nearby.

Gene Parks was captured immediately, but the older brother fled and took automobiles from four different motorists in a desperate attempt to escape. He was caught after an eight-mile chase which ended when Police Chief Ivan Reed and Deputy Sheriff Bruce McCollum pulled along side and Reed wounded the alleged killer with a blast from a riot gun.

Edwards disclosed that the wounded Parks had been taken to the Roswell Hospital and his young brother put in jail in the same town. He said "passions were running pretty high" as the two elderly victims were well liked.

Sharp Earthquake In West Guatemala

NEW YORK (AP)—Fordham University's seismograph Sunday night recorded a fairly sharp earthquake about 2,100 miles southwest of here.

The first tremor was felt at 8:10:45 p.m. E.D.T. and the second at 8:15:56 p.m.

The university located the earthquake about 1,900 miles southwest of Cleveland, O. That would place the quake in West Guatemala, the school said.

The quake was "unusually deep" and could have caused considerable damage, the report added.

Chinese Here In Big Convention

MONTREAL (CP)—A "Lion Parade," to the staccato explosions of fireworks and the syncopation of drums and cymbals, highlighted the 12th annual convention Sunday of the Chinese Nationalist League in Montreal's Chinatown.

"Strings of money and lettuce, hung from windows along the lion's route on Clarke, Lagaciere and St. Urban Streets were 'eaten' by the prancing effigy to symbolize strength and support for the league.

The delegates, representing the 6,000 members of the Chinese Nationalist League of Canada, spent today in policy deliberations at Nationalist headquarters.

Canadian Korea Vets To Instruct

WEST SECTOR, KOREA (CP)—Eight members of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry today on their way to domestic training establishments in Canada where they will be instructors.

Communist Propaganda Guns Boom; Nothing Said Of 1,900,000 Casualties In One Year

By HARRY FERGUSON
UP Foreign News Editor

If and when a cease-fire is proclaimed in Korea, the big question will be: Who won the war? Moscow has answered that question in advance. The Communists won it and we lost it. The North Koreans and the Chinese Reds concur in Moscow's opinion. It is safe to predict that no matter what happens from now on nothing is going to change their opinion.

Even before the United Nations and Communist negotiators met for their first cease-fire talks, the Communist propaganda drums began to throb. An unidentified reporter in the North Korean capital of Pyongyang wrote a story explaining all about it. He sent it to Moscow where all the newspapers published it.

BID FROM U.S.

"Having suffered reverses in an effort to seize North Korea by force," his dispatch read, "the government of the United States officially expressed a desire to cease hostilities and ordered Ridgway to begin negotiations with the commander-in-chief of the Korean people's army."

There is no reference in the Communist propaganda to the fact that the Red forces in Korea have suffered casualties of about 1,900,000 in one year. No reference to the fact that two powerful offensives by the Communists this spring were thrown back with heavy losses in men and equipment. No reference to the fact that the cease-fire negotiations were set in motion by a Communist-Jacob Malik, Soviet delegate to the United Nations, who opened up the matter with a broadcast saying a negotiated peace was possible.

If this war ends where it began—along the 38th Parallel—impartial historians may deprive the Communists of some of the victory laurels which they now are busily awarding to themselves. But the propaganda designed for consumption inside the Communist nations never will change. In their history books the United Nations army always will be on the losing side. U.N. soldiers at the front already have become interested in history's verdict on the war they fought. Dispatches indicated that the troops think a settlement along the Parallel would be a victory for them. To them it would mean that the Communists had been chased back where they came from—North Korea.

The higher echelon officers in the United States 8th Army are thinking along slightly different lines. Their fear seems to be that a negotiated settlement of the war would mean that the United States would relax and might even slow down rearmament. Having dealt with Communism on the battlefield, they believe this is a serious danger. One U.N. officer summed it up to a U.P. correspondent in this tough fashion. "The first Com-

The Smear Of C. D. Howe

THE ABBREVIATED NEWS REPORTS probably have left a good deal of public confusion concerning the recent activities of Mr. C. D. Howe as a cabinet minister and as a private individual. A careful reading of the full parliamentary record reveals nothing to the discredit of Mr. Howe in the matter of government contracts and nothing to support the attempt of Mr. Drew to smear his good name.

The facts are simple enough. Before entering the Government in 1935 Mr. Howe headed a successful engineering company bearing his name. On taking public office Mr. Howe sold his company and had nothing more to do with it. He agreed—and this was a mistake, as he admits—that the company's name should remain unchanged.

During the last war, when virtually every engineering firm in Canada was doing some work for the government, the C. D. Howe company was not given any government contracts whatever. That, says Mr. Howe, was a sacrifice paid by the company for its name and also a loss of able service to the state.

After the war Mr. Howe's son, newly graduated as an engineer, applied for a beginner's job in the company and secured it. So did his son-in-law.

The company, being eminent in the engineering field, received a contract from the federal public works department to supervise the construction of a dock at Seven Islands. Mr. Howe says he never heard of that contract until it was signed.

When the national research council, in charge of atomic development, proposed to hire the company to supervise construction of a plant at Chalk River its president, Dean C. J. Mackenzie, asked Mr. Howe if he would be embarrassed by such a contract, since the company still bore his name. Mr. Howe replied that it would be embarrassing but if no other firm were available Dean Mackenzie should go ahead with his plan, provided that, in his judgment, this was the best thing to do. His discussion with Dean Mackenzie, says Mr. Howe, was the last he heard of the matter. The C. D. Howe Company was given the contract.

On this record Mr. Drew charges that the C. D. Howe Company is a "family company" which has benefited from the public purse, the clear implication being that Mr. Howe has favored his own private interests. The family company turns out to be one in which Mr. Howe has no financial interest but which happens to employ two of his relatives. On such grounds an attempt is made to damage the reputation of one of the greatest public servants in Canada's history.

Mr. Howe attempts to hide nothing. He asks Mr. Drew to observe the tradition of the parliamentary system, to make specific charges and, as is customary, to stake his seat in Parliament on the outcome. But when Mr. Howe offers to have any such charges investigated by a parliamentary committee or by a royal commission Mr. Drew does not accept the offer. He dodges it by saying lamely that Mr. Howe "quite clearly established the association of his family with the company, and since he has brought that up then he has established exactly what was said."

And what has been established? That Mr. Howe had no interest in the company, did not himself award it any contracts and that two of his relatives were employees of the company. All of which Mr. Drew seeks to exaggerate by innuendo and smear into a scandal, though he is ready to make and prove no charges or to take any personal risk in doing so.

Mr. Howe has his faults as a statesman. He is often impatient of the slow grind of the parliamentary process. He is overworked, tired and sometimes gruff. He occasionally says things in the heat of debate which are bound to embarrass the government when they are repeated on the hustings. But he is transparently honest, he has made a huge financial sacrifice in serving the country, he probably did more than any single Canadian in the last war and better than any other Canadian, he is equipped to manage our present program of defense mobilization.

It is a sign of bankruptcy when Mr. Drew can think of nothing better than to smear such a man without accepting the offer of a full investigation. In many past elections the Canadian people have shown that they properly assess such conduct.

Government Has No Money

AS OUTLINED HERE THE OTHER day, the recent speech of Mr. Paul Martin takes justifiable pride in the Canadian government's huge program of social security, of which a universal old age pension system is the latest departure. Just the same, many Canadians will wish that Mr. Martin would speak in a somewhat different tone.

To read his speech one would almost imagine that the government, or even Mr. Martin himself as the responsible minister, was providing pensions for everybody at the age of 70. Of course the government is doing nothing of the sort. The pensions down to the last penny are being provided solely by the Canadian people. The government contributes nothing to them and can contribute nothing since it has no money of its own.

Governments, it should always be remembered, earn nothing, create no wealth, merely take money from one person to hand it on to the other and in that process, use a substantial share of the nation's energy and income in the unproductive cost of administration.

That is precisely the nature of the universal old age pension. Everybody, or nearly everybody, will set aside part of his income, which he will receive back in his old age. Nothing, literally nothing, will be contributed by the state except management, for which the public will pay. And some millions of Canadians who are better off than their neighbors will pay far more into the pension fund than they will ever take out, so that others in poorer circumstances can take out far more than they will put in.

This is the kind of social security which the Canadian people evidently desire, since their Parliament is unanimously supporting it. But no miracle is involved. Mr. Martin is performing no magic whatever.

His speech leaves the impression that the government has displayed heroic courage against almost insuperable obstacles; but spending money is, in fact, the easiest thing a government can do. Real courage is displayed when a government, resisting the temptation to be always popular, holds down its spending. Little of that sort of courage is evident in any of our governments, federal, provincial or municipal.

Mr. Martin no doubt is doing an able job for social security and is entitled to the public's appreciation. But one could wish that sometimes he would pause in the midst of his eloquence to remember where the money is coming from, to note that it certainly is not coming from the government.

The Great 'B.K.'

IN RETIRING FROM THE EDITORSHIP of Toronto Saturday Night Mr. B. K. Sandwell, dean of Canadian journalists, has left his lifework in good hands. His successor, Mr. R. A. Farquharson, managing editor of The Toronto Globe and Mail, is well equipped by experience and temperament to carry on "B.K.'s" traditions.

They are essentially traditions of liberalism in the highest sense. No partisan of any political party, Mr. Sandwell, though an old man now, has always recognized this as a new age, full of change, and he has accepted it with a gentle enthusiasm. He could be found fighting always on the side of the little man and the big causes. As vigorously as any journalist in Canada, and in a good humored, unhurried style of his own, he has fought for economic reform, for internationalism, and, though English-born, for Canadianism, for the liberties of the individual citizen. Thus he maintained the spirit of Ryerson, Mackenzie, Brown, Howe, and Dafoe.

For such a man there is never an exact substitute but with Mr. Farquharson Saturday Night will be in charge of an editor who already has made one great daily newspaper almost by his single exertions and is well trained in the periodical field. Since our national periodicals are few and struggle under heavy economic disabilities, Canadians will wish the new editor well and hope that his predecessor remains long with us, and never abandons his genial, persuasive pen.

Loose Ends

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

A LABOR union leader in Victoria, evidently a man of deep penetration, is quoted in the press as saying that labor is not seeking at the moment anything less than a forty-hour week. The obvious reason for such a decision is that a further reduction in hours will certainly reduce total production and the amount of goods that working men can enjoy. But this wise man goes much further into the unmapped field of the intangible and spiritual when he says that the problem of working men is to learn to use the leisure which modern machinery already has won them. A problem indeed. Perhaps the deepest problem of all.

Hutchison

IN NORTH AMERICA (under a free enterprise system which is constantly indicted for its cruelty and injustice) we have secured more leisure than any other working people have ever known before. Incidentally, most North Americans are workers, whether rich or poor, whereas the rich of other places and ages usually did nothing useful. It is equally clear that having achieved leisure we don't know yet what to do with it. If used, it could bring us more harm than good, more unhappiness than happiness, and, in the end, complete ruin.

SOME YEARS ago certain organizations in Canada held a series of conferences on the problems of using leisure. That looked pretty silly at the time, when a good part of the population was unemployed, had more leisure than it wanted and only sought work.

To the conference came Sir Rabin-dranath Tagore, the leading poet of India, a curious man with a big mind and a tiny, doll-like body. Men in the western nations, said Tagore, would like to do many good things but, he screamed in his shrill and tiny voice, "western man has no time."

SINCE THEN we have managed to get plenty of time, more than we know how to use. We shall get more yet, if we don't get an atom bomb. After we have arranged to defend ourselves, after the machines have been further improved, we shall be able to cut down working hours again—provided, of course, that we are willing to use less goods than we could have if we kept on working as before. We may be wise to take more leisure than more goods—provided we know how to use the leisure.

ONLY A FEW men know how to use leisure. For most of them, leisure, after a few days, is sheer horror and quite unnecessarily horrible. It may seem strange to many men, particularly rich men who love their work, but it is quite possible to enjoy oneself without earning money. The mistake, however, is to imagine that one can enjoy oneself without work. That, for any long period, is quite impossible. Good leisure does not mean idleness. It usually means, for wise men, work much harder than the work done for pay.

AMERICA will never be able to manage its emancipation from paid work until it learns to do unpaid work. That is the secret of leisure—to find the work that one likes. Since the human being, in the classic definition of Justice Wendell Holmes, was made to function, he can never be healthy or happy in idleness (except for rare geniuses who can live without functioning, and often do, making the headlines now and then for such accomplishments as marrying a Hollywood actress for the seventh time). The normal actors of Adam must work or die. Either they die physically of poverty or, worse, they die spiritually of boredom, glut and vice.

BECAUSE he knows this the average man does not wish to give up his job. He hates to retire at 65, the age fixed by governments and industries peculiarly insane. Often he dies soon afterwards from sheer loss of momentum, for the lack of something to do. Against this sudden break in the whole scheme of life a man must be prepared these days, since governments and industry are not likely to grow sane in our time.

It is hard for a busy man to conceive it, but he may be quite happy in idleness—provided he keeps on working as hard as ever. Nay, if he is a wise man of real inner wealth he will work harder. There is so much more to do when one is released from the wretched irritation of making a mere living. There are so many fields to explore, so many crafts to master, so many arts to dabble in, so many things to learn that, at 65, a man has no time for a tenth part of them.

IN THE leisure we have now even in our working lives any man can do practically anything. In a few years he could acquire a college education in his spare time, write French or Sanskrit or learn the theory of Relativity—and all entirely free—with plenty of time left over for building a boat, making a garden or collecting butterflies.

But in most cases the leisure wrong from 5,000 years of invention and machinery is entirely wasted. I don't mean it is wasted because no work is done but because most of those enjoying it are much less happy than when they are on their daily jobs.

Never in all human history was there such a chance as now for the full life, as distinguished from the full belly. Never was so much time, so much mind and so much humanity utterly wasted. We may stand the economic strain of shortening work hours too quickly. We cannot stand the drain of wasted leisure, which corrupts and destroys the man.

Embalming The Lie

Montreal Star

SOMEbody had the bright idea of going through the new edition of the Great Soviet Encyclopedia to see what changes have been made in it since the first edition appeared in 1926. There is no insight, he thought, into a nation's way of thought like a copy of its chief work of reference. Plenty of insight resulted from this piece of research. The researcher found that not only had all the original editors disappeared from the masthead but that the new editors slavishly follow the party line.

CIRCUS AND PARK

APART from the unnecessary abuse of the animals in the circus, why do the medical profession and the city and municipal health authorities not object to the Clyde Beatty circus being allowed to occupy Victoria West Park? This is a public park and playgrounds, and certainly in former years the very crude sanitary arrangements for the large number of humans employed by the circus was, to say the least of it, anything but a credit to the authorities of Victoria who allowed these conditions to exist.

SQUAWK

MAY I step slightly to the right of my column for a moment, and fall out, so to speak? I wish particularly to fall out with frivolous journalists and other wits who make fun of Mr. Bowman for saying "squawking like pigs." Pigs, they say, don't squeak. They can only grunt or squeal. I have had the honor of knowing many pigs, human and better, and I find they can make a great variety of noises, even when short of jokes. For example, they can snort, sometimes mistakenly.

In any event, the word "squawk" is extremely vague and can be applied to any harsh, violent, or discordant screech, squeal, squeak, etc. Almost any animal or bird can squawk as well as any quibbler. (See Shorter Oxford English Dictionary.) Permit me to squawk back at these jesters who won't look a word up before starting the fun.

FOR IRISH, TOO

IN your interesting "Sunday Magazine Times" on page 10, you state "as everybody knows the bagpipes are exclusively for Scots or Gurkhas and any Sassenach entering that field is really putting his neck out."

You'll be having the Irish reminding you that the bagpipes are definitely not "exclusively for Scots and Gurkhas," but that the Irish bagpipe is a much sweeter instrument than the Scotch bagpipe, as it plays half tones—so I'm told.

May the saints preserve me, a Sassenach, for using the word sweeter when referring to bagpipes of any sort. Incidentally, bagpipes are played in Northumberland.

As for "any Sassenach entering that field is really putting his neck out," it may be news to you to know that a Devonshire man won the bagpipe contest for the whole of Scotland. This was several years ago.

We enjoy your Magazine Section very much.

Takes Issue With Milk Board

UPON the request of certain dealers and without a public hearing, Milk Board Order No. 27 of June 1, 1950, took away from all producers some $225,000 in a five-month period and handed this sum to the dealers. This was deducted from the former price of Order No. 20 of June, 1948, although production costs has risen some 20 per cent during these two years.

This injury was followed by the insult of Order No. 28, November 1, 1950, which raised the price of less than half a cent per quart to producers on 3.5 per cent milk only and their price on the highest testing milk cut below the price paid to them in June, 1948. Price to consumers was raised two cents per quart and every other price to them was raised even above the consumer prices then prevailing in Victoria.

Order No. 27 was evil and Order No. 28 did nothing to prevent the continuation of the logical consequences in the slaughter of dairy developed breeds and destruction of production, which is higher per cow than in any other area in Canada and it would take at least four years to bring about recovery.

Throughout the year of 1950 the Minister of Agriculture and the Chairman of the Milk Board were fully advised what the irresistible results of their Orders 27 and 28 would be and the responsibility for destruction within the dairy industry and shortage of milk rests squarely upon the shoulders of these two public servants whose own boomerang has returned to them.

In defense of the Minister of Agriculture it can be conclusively proven that he was ignorant in his mathematics and he did not understand the price all producers received even after Orders 27 and 28 were enforced.

The excuse now advanced by these two officials is that the dairy farmers were tempted by the high price for beef to have their dairy cows killed. In normal times dairy cows are certainly not in demand for beef and today the honest to goodness dairy farmer, who is willing to work 70 hours a week to meet his obligations, looks upon his producing herd much the same as cows are looked upon in India and he will send them to the butcher's block only when bankruptcy stares him in the face, for his herd is his life's work.

Our Premier was unavoidably absent from the Executive Council when the Minister of Agriculture obtained their approval and when he has been fully informed about the creation of the present serious condition he will doubtless do everything in his power, for all concerned, to prevent continuation of this calamity.

Newsprint Is Canada's Problem

By HARRY YOUNG
(First of a Series)

CANADA produces five times more newsprint than any other country in the world. Ninety-four per cent of its production is exported and three out of every five pages of the world's newspapers are printed on Canadian paper.

This tremendous industry also involves tremendous responsibility. At the moment it is under fire by United States and Canadian publishers who are indignant about what they feel is an unjust price increase of $10 per ton which came into effect July 1. Price, however, is only one aspect of Canada's responsibility. In the proper hands paper can spread the gospel of freedom from fear and oppression which we believe is the keynote of democracy.

The supply of newsprint today is nothing like sufficient to meet the demand—nor will it be for many years to come. Many countries striving to follow the democratic way of life are seriously handicapped by a lack of newsprint to carry the message of freedom. Solution of the distribution problem falls naturally upon Canada as the world's chief source.

ESSENTIAL MATERIALS
The situation has been realized at Ottawa, and this year the government declared newsprint, together with the allied mechanical and chemical pulps, to be essential materials, and thus liable at any time to federal investigation or even control.

It has set up a pulp and paper committee, but as recent events prove, the function of this government-sponsored body is rather to ensure the fair distribution of newsprint than to control prices.

This month Trade Minister C. D. Howe said he was unwilling to intervene, as he had been urged to do by United States interests, against the decision of a number of Canadian newsprint companies to increase their prices.

What the government hopes to do is to deal sympathetically with any proposed international arrangement for a wider and fuller distribution of Canadian newsprint to other democracies in short supply.

Unfortunately any move to supply these countries must be at the expense of Canada's greatest customer—the United States, which is already indicating its displeasure.

The United States took 4,380,250 tons out of Canada's total 1949 newsprint shipments of 5,164,332 tons. Only by a reduction in this proportion to the United States can the shortage in other countries be eased.

NO GREAT SACRIFICE
The sacrifice by the United States publishers would not need to be great. It is estimated that 4 per cent of the United States imports of newsprint from Canada would meet the emergency needs of the rest of the world's press.

Here are some enlightening figures on the huge U.S. appetite for newsprint: The New York News in 1949 used 285,000 tons of newsprint. The Chicago Tribune, owned by the anglophobe Col. R. R. McCormick, used 192,500 tons.

Both of these papers used more newsprint than the total exported to Britain from Canada in 1949. The British share was 126,484 tons.

In India where the government is in desperate straits for newsprint to assist it in the battle against communism, one editor recently remarked more in sorrow than in anger:

"I weighed the Sunday edition of one big United States paper. It turned the scale at 3½ pounds. I figured out what the total newsprint consumption for that one issue must have been and I found it was sufficient to meet my total newsprint needs for five years."

The Canadian industry must now ask itself whether this state of affairs can continue, or whether it must cut supplies and offend its best customer.

SOUTHERNERS JOIN TO FORCE SAVINGS

Democrats Form 'Wrecking Crew' To Prune Budgets Of Three Government Departments

WASHINGTON (UPP) — A self-styled "wrecking crew" formed by southern Democrats to fight for government economy promised today to do a thorough pruning job on the money requests of the state, justice and commerce departments.

The southern House members who have a close working alliance with Republican economy advocates—have forced savings in other fiscal 1952 appropriations bills which they estimate at more than $1,000,000,000.

The State-Justice-Commerce Bill, on which the "wrecking crew" and its G.O.P. allies are now ready to centre their fire, is slated to be considered by the House within the next few days. The appropriations committee plans to put it into final form

Tuesday and send it to the floor for action.

The economy forces aren't certain yet just where they will want to propose further savings. They don't know what the appropriations committee is going to do. But they said they are geared to save every penny possible.

The existence of the southern-led "wrecking crew" was a well-kept secret until a few days ago. Rep. A. S. Herlong Jr. (D-Fla.), made the first public reference to it in a letter to his constituents.

"There is a group in Congress known as the wrecking crew which has done practically all of the work incident to the cutting of these appropriations," Herlong said. "We employ an expert analyst who formerly had years of experience with the Bureau of the Budget and who knows the needs of the various departments and can separate their essential requirements from their desires."

"Based on the information received from him and what we know about it, we prepare and submit to the House amendments making cuts in the appropriations bills. . . . The wrecking crew . . . is composed entirely of southern Democrats."

It was learned that all southern states are represented on the "crew." Rep. William M. Colmer (D-Miss) was said to be chairman. Colmer would not admit this, but he said he was "one of a group who feel that if the republic is to survive we must have a balanced budget and must economize wherever possible."

Major Personnel Changes In Air Force

Three changes among senior positions was announced today by the Royal Canadian Air Force. Air Vice-Marshal F. R. Miller left, becomes vice-chief of air staff. Air Vice-Marshal C. R. Dunlap, centre, is made commandant of the national defence college, and Air Vice-Marshal A. L.

James, right, will take over the newly-formed Aid Defense Command. The changes amalgamate two of the four divisions at R.C.A.F. headquarters, a result of the rapid expansion. Appointments are effective Aug. 1.

Victoria Scout To See Princess

King Scout Sidney Bell, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Bell, 2825 Graham Street, is leaving Victoria Tuesday afternoon to join 54 other members of a Canadian Scout contingent leaving for a jamboree to be held in Salzburg, Austria, during the first two weeks in August.

Bell, member of the North Quadra troop, is one of five representatives to the Jamboree from B.C. and the only one from Vancouver Island. The Canadian contingent will sail from Montreal after spending four days in camp there.

En route to Austria, the Victoria Scout and other Canadians will be reviewed by Princess Elizabeth on July 28 and will visit Oxford University, Buckingham Palace, Westminster Abbey and other places of interest in England.

2,934 Homes In 5 Months

Nearly 3,000 new homes were completed in B.C. and made ready for occupancy during the first five months of this year, according to figures just compiled by the province's bureau of statistics.

Actual count of completed homes was 2,934, as compared with 2,724 during the corresponding five-month period of 1950.

At the same time, the value of building permits issued throughout the province for all types of new construction ran to $40,699,000, an increase of $2,347,000 over the $38,352,000 total for the same interval of the previous year.

HOME GARDEN

By HILDA BEASTALL

A native of Europe, Lythrum was introduced to North America where the species L. salicaria became a weed in the marshy areas of the east, and is commonly called the Purple Loosestrife.

On a recent garden visit I was attracted by a perennial which is not seen in many gardens. Its mass of bright rose flowers against a background of grey rock, spotlighted by a ray of sunshine which filtered through the tall oak trees, made it a lovely sight.

It proved to be the garden variety of the Purple Loosestrife, Lythrum, salicaria roseum. In height it was from four to five feet, with wand-like stems carrying narrow dark green leaves, which terminate in the whorls of bright flowers. The central spike would measure 12 inches or more, and additional flower stems arise from the leaf axils.

Lythrum is very accommodating. While it enjoys a naturally moist location, it will thrive in any good soil which will hold an abundance of moisture. Since shade, or partial shade, is an asset, it may be grown beneath trees where the gardener's choice of plant material is limited.

Normally, Lythrum salicaria blooms in late summer, commencing around the end of July. This season, in common with many other perennials, it appears to be a few weeks ahead. In another few days it will be in full bloom, and like all plants which will flower successfully in the shade of tall trees it will retain its blossoms much longer than plants which grow in full sun.

Propagation is by division of the clumps, and being a late summer perennial, this work is usually done in early spring.

We often hear home gardeners complain of being unable to have a good showing of flowers because their property is shaded with trees. If you are fortunate in having such an area there are shade-loving perennials of which advantage should be taken.

Astilbe japonica in white, crimson, and shades of pink; boltonia latifolia with sprays of lavender daisy-like flowers; shade-loving lilies—these make good companions for the Lythrum.

U.S. Should Not Relax On Peace Signing

SOMEWHERE IN KOREA (UP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, making a 40-mile front line tour, said today he was "optimistic" about a cease-fire ending the Korean war but believed America should shift to total war mobilization.

(Canadian Press writer Bill Boss reported today that Dewey had made a brief visit to Brig. J. M. Rockingham's 25th Brigade headquarters. Fighter planes protecting the light aircraft flying his party used the Canadian airstrip to fit the call into his whirlwind tour.)

The former presidential candidate, making a six-week, nine-country, 25,000-mile tour of the Far East, said: "The cease-fire proposal doesn't challenge Moscow's long-range determination to conquer the world. A cease-fire should certainly not interfere with our determination to rearm at high speed both ourselves and our allies."

"I do not think the cease-fire negotiations will fail," Dewey said. "However, we must continue to develop collective action with our allies for defense. I will continue to push full mobilization as vigorously as ever."

New Red Jets Too Fast To Describe

MOSCOW (UP) — Five late-model Soviet jet fighters roared through the overcast skies of Moscow so fast Sunday that Western air attaches at the Moscow aviation day show could not give adequate descriptions of them.

The five new models were unveiled in the most interesting postwar air show put on by the Soviets. They flew low over review stands which held Marshal Joseph Stalin, Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, and V. M. Molotov, Deputy President of the Council of Ministers of the U.S.S.R., but went so fast observers were unable to describe them except in most general terms.

Early Rising Wednesday For Small Fry

Wednesday is the day — that much heralded special kind of red and gold studded holiday complete with blaring bands, the roars of wild jungle animals and the aroma of savdust known as Circus Day. At 6 Wednesday morning, the long brilliantly-hued orange and blue special railroad trains will bring the big Clyde Beatty Circus to Victoria for a three-day exhibition at Victoria West Park with performances scheduled at 2:00 and 8:00 p.m. daily.

Those great, lumbering, rubber-colored titans of the jungle, jungle beasts, the erudite ring and track horses, the bespangled folk and the clowns all will roll into town aboard their "special Pullmans."

The dining tent or the "cook house" as it is known in circus vernacular, will be the first tent raised, where two dozen cooks, bakers and waiters will be busily engaged in the preparation and meals, which they are required to serve in a single day to the big show's vast human family. The mammoth stoves and ovens will be stoked, and a bountiful hot breakfast will soon be awaiting the battalions of workmen and performers.

The whole area of the circus grounds will be a "teeming city" of activity, as the several hundred workmen assisted by the elephants and working horses along with a fleet of diesel equipment, will be working in feverish haste in the erection of the 27 tents.

Heading the long list of international favorites in the show is the owner and star of this huge amusement institution, "Mr. Circus" himself, Clyde Beatty. The world renowned star of screen, radio and television, recognized as the greatest wild animal trainer, will appear in person at each performance, presenting his famous group of fighting and trained African lions and Royal Bengal tigers, all at one time in the big steel arena. Beatty this year, is featuring his world famous tiger-killing lion Prince, the 338 pound ferocious beast who recently attracted international attention when he savagely attacked and killed two tigers in the act during performances at Detroit.

The doors to the circus will open one hour prior to each performance, in order that patrons may have ample time in which to visit the huge menagerie of rare and wild jungle animals and at no added charges whatsoever, a spokesman for the circus stated here today. Tickets for both general admission and reserved seats are on sale at the at 701 Fort Street and at the same prices as charged at the circus grounds, the spokesman further stated.

MIDWESTERN U.S. LASHED BY STORMS

At Least Six Killed In Tornadoes, Thunder And New Missouri Basin Flood Crests Seen

By United Press

Tornadoes and violent thunderstorms lashed the mid-west today, dumping heavy rains that caused new flood crests in the Missouri River basin, where high water has wreaked $5,000,000 damage.

Storms battered Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana and Michigan throughout the week-end and more wind, lightning and rain played across the area early today.

The bad weather claimed at least six lives during the week-end. A woman was killed near Muskegon, Mich., when a tree fell in the path of her automobile. Two men drowned when their boat capsized in high Lake Michigan waves off Chicago, and three persons were killed when their car skidded into a truck in a heavy Indiana rainstorm.

Wisconsin was battered repeatedly by a series of thunderstorms that caused hundreds of thousands of dollars damage. Winds reached 88 miles an hour.

Chicago had 2.41 inches of rain fall that flooded underpasses. Wind and lightning knocked cornices off buildings, tore trees down and caused several fires.

THREE TORNADOES

Three tornadoes hit Sunday night and early today. One near Parkville, Mo., and another near Olathe, Kan., caused no damage. A third which struck Kokomo, Ind., ran through a 20-block southern section of the city, causing thousands of dollars damage to buildings and wires and uprooting trees, but injuring none. Three minor fires were set off by the downed wires.

A party of eight young people, four men and four women, were rescued from Chesapeake Bay early today after their motor launch broke up in choppy seas, a ninth survivor, Philip Klosky of Washington, made a long swim to shore to get help.

The new rains in Missouri and Kansas posed additional dangers along the rampaging Missouri River, which was expected to crest seven feet above flood stage at Booneville, Mo., Wednesday.

A 1.60-inch rain in 40 minutes sent a flash flood pouring down Five Mile Creek into the southern part of Leavenworth, Kan., Sunday night. Available police and deputies were called to help stranded motorists and householders as water poured two feet deep over U.S. Highway 73. Heavy winds felled numerous trees in North Kansas City.

Canada's Scientists Develop New Ray

OTTAWA (BUP). — Canadian scientists have developed an instrument that can "see" through heavy metal and needs no power source, the National Research Council announced today.

The device uses radioactive tridium and already has been used by experts in the council's physics division here, the announcement said.

The equipment, described as similar to but much stronger than X-ray apparatus but without the complicated electrical machinery that goes with X-ray machines, gets its power from gamma rays.

The rays are able to pass through iron, brass and even lead as easily as X-rays pass through skin and flesh, the council said. Physicists at the Federal Radiology Laboratory said that using the newly-developed equipment they had been able to spot hidden flaws inside heavy castings, nails in wood and in plastic telephone receivers.

PICK BRADLEY AS IKE'S SUCCESSOR

Figured To Take Over Supreme Commander's Post Early In 1952

WASHINGTON (UP)—Appointment of Gen. Omar N. Bradley next month to a second term as chairman of the joint chiefs of staff is confidently expected here. His present service will end Aug. 16.

But Bradley is not likely to complete a second two-year hitch in that job. The way things are moving now it is more likely that Bradley will be in Europe early next year as successor to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

About the only thing which could upset that would be a decision by other Atlantic Pact members that they no longer desired a U.S. supreme commander of Europe's anti-Communist armies.

The Europeans picked Ike themselves. Even if Mr. Truman thought active European service would diminish Eisenhower's availability for next year's Republican presidential nomination, he would not have had to guide other pact members in their choice.

Ike was picked by the Europeans partly for the tradition of victory which surrounds him. But more than that, he was picked almost as a hostage. If Eisenhower went to Europe as supreme commander, then surely the Yanks would be coming, too. Europeans are logical and their logic was good. The Yanks are coming—six full divisions them, in time—and a lot more U.S. dollars, to boot.

Bradley would be Europe's next best bet of that kind. And he also is a figure of victory in the Old World. There seems to be small chance that any of the pact nations will want one of their own as supreme commander so long as a popular U.S. general such as Eisenhower or

Racing Car Victim

ST. HYACINTHE, Que. (CP)—A spectator at stock races here was killed Sunday when one of the cars plowed into him after a tire blow-out. The victim was Jacques Turcotte, 30.

Bradley can be had for the post. The urgency of affairs in the national defense department might persuade Mr. Truman that Bradley could not be spared to Europe next year. If so, Ike's successor probably would be his present U.S. deputy, Lt. Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther. Gruenther is known in the army as a "brain." He is a brilliant officer but not particularly well known here or in Europe.

BRIAN TEDDLEDSEN WINS JUNIOR FISHING DERBY

Over 50 enthusiastic young anglers tested the waters of Saanich Inlet yesterday as the V.S.I.A.A. Junior Fishing Derby was held.

Fishing was found to be spotty but the enthusiasm of the youngsters more than made up for the lack of fish.

Brian Teddlesden boated a salmon that tipped the scales at 13 pounds to win first place in the boys' division and the Ronnie Sadler memorial trophy. Mona Greston was the girls' winner with a 5 1/2 pound fish.

Several winners did not pick up their awards at the weigh-in ceremonies yesterday and officials of the derby announce that these prizes can be obtained at Victoria Sporting Goods store.

Consolation prizes will be drawn for at a meeting tomorrow night.

Ferrier Retains Open Golf Title

TORONTO (CP)—Stern-faced Jim Ferrier of San Francisco, who plays every shot as if his life depends on it, won his second straight Canadian Open golf championship Saturday with a typical display of skill and studied concentration.

Two strokes off the leading pace when he started the last round of the $15,000 72-hole test, the former Australian shot a sparkling 67 over Mississauga course for a total of 273—two

Red Sox Barge Into A.L. Pennant Race

NEW YORK (UP)—A trade wind blew the Red Sox into second place in the American League today, one game out of first.

It was no great deal when the Sox got Clyde Volmer from the Senators last year. He was rated just a so-so outfielder, and the Sox took him in a trade simply because his right-handed long-ball hitting might be tailor made for the short Fenway Park left field fence.

The fruits of that hunch were blooming today, however. Friday, Volmer batted in two runs with a triple as the Sox beat the Yankees, 6-2; Saturday he smashed a grand-slam home run as the Sox beat the Yanks, 10-4; and yesterday he completed the series sweep as his two-run homer put the Sox ahead for an eventual 6-3 win.

That upped the Sox to second place, bounced the Yanks down to third and only the failure of a ninth-inning Browns' rally against the White Sox kept the Boston from going into first. The White Sox needed three pitchers in the ninth to save their 5-4 win.

Boston now has won six straight and 11 of the last 15. Cleveland, meanwhile, kept only four games out of first with 8-3 and 10-2 wins over Detroit on Larry Doby's extra-bases barrage, while seven-hitters by Connie Marrero and Sid Hudson gave Washington a 3-1 and 8-2 sweep over the A's.

DOGGERS KEEP ROLLING
Brooklyn stepped out 8 1/2 games in front of the National League race when Jackie Robinson's 10th-inning homer beat the Phils, 6-4, while Syd Gordon's 10th-inning homer beat the Giants for the Braves, 6-5. The Pirates beat the Cards 6-2, then lost to them, 9-8, while the Cubs and Reds were rained out.

Why Didn't Your Mother
Give You Amm-i-dent?

Amm-i-dent Effect Continues for Hours

The active ingredients in ammoniated dentifrices are Dibasic Ammonium Phosphate and Carbamide—and Amm-i-dent contains more of them than other brands. The ammonium-releasing effect of Amm-i-dent continues for hours after its use. Just follow your usual brushing habits.

So don't wait. Change away from the tooth paste you were using while present cavities occurred. Change to Amm-i-dent Ammoniated Tooth Paste.

Buy the Giant Economy Size—You Save 25%

Further Proof Provided

The ability of ammoniated dentifrices to reduce tooth decay was proved further by reports of new, extensive clinical tests. These tests proved conclusively that ammoniated dentifrices give greater protection against tooth decay than any method of brushing with ordinary dentifrice. Give yourself, your whole family, the benefits of Amm-i-dent. Why wait a single day. Change to Amm-i-dent. Tooth Paste or Tooth Powder now. Start the children, also, on this road to better dental health.

Change From Your Present Tooth Paste to Amm-i-dent That Helps Reduce Tooth Decay

How many cavities did the dentist find in the teeth of your family in 1950? How many fillings were required? Are you still using the tooth paste you used when those cavities occurred?

Other people—millions of them—have changed to the ammoniated formula. Amm-i-dent has evidence of many Amm-i-dent users whose dentists did not find a single new cavity on their 1950 check-up.

BEDTIME STORY

by Thornton W. Burgess

In wisdom he is little schooled who by his appetite is ruled.

For the first time in days Buster Bear was happy. Yes, sir; he was happy. He still had a sore paw, so sore that he could not touch it to the ground without making a face because it hurt so. Despite this he was happy. He was happy because he was filling his stomach with blueberries, nice, ripe, plump blueberries, and Buster is very, very fond of blueberries. That shows his good taste.

Those berries were growing in the Old Pasture. There was a place there where the ground was damp, a place just suited to blueberries, the kind that grow on high bushes.

For the time being Buster forgot everything but what he was doing. He forgot that he was no longer in the Green Forest where he belonged. He forgot that he was out in the Old Pasture where he was likely to be seen. He forgot there was anybody or anything else in all the Great World but himself and those blueberries. That was a mistake. It is always a mistake to forget where you are or your surroundings.

Now, unknown to Buster, Blacky the Crow had followed him from the Green Forest. He had followed by flying from tree to tree keeping Buster in sight but himself out of sight. He was doing it out of curiosity. Now his curiosity was satisfied. He flew over high above Buster and began to caw.

"Caw, caw, caw!" shrieked Blacky at the top of his voice.

"Caw, caw, caw!"

Everybody who heard him knew that something unusual was to be seen in the Old Pasture. So everybody who heard Blacky stopped what he was doing and listened. Over in the Dear Old Briar-patch Peter Rabbit and Mrs. Peter listened.

"Someone is over in the Old Pasture," declared Peter.

"There always is someone over in the Old Pasture," replied Mrs. Peter dryly.

"You know what I mean," retorted Peter a bit sharply. "There is someone over there who doesn't belong there. Blacky doesn't make such a fuss, doesn't get so excited, over folks who belong. I wonder who it can be."

"Caw, caw, caw!" came Blacky's voice.

Peter made a funny little hop right up in the air. "Do you know what I think?" asked Peter.

"I think Blacky is cawing. 'Bear! Bear! Bear!' That's what I think."

Somebody else was thinking the same thing. It was Reddy Fox. You know, Reddy and Mrs. Reddy live in the Old Pasture.

Another heard Blacky and caught his excitement. It was Farmer Brown's boy. He saw Blacky, a tiny speck in the distance. "Blacky sees someone over where the blueberries grow. Perhaps someone is stealing our berries. I'll just run over there and find out, thought Farmer Brown's boy. And that's just what he did.

Buster heard him coming. He snatched one more mouthful of berries, then limped back into the Green Forest. His feast had been interrupted and he didn't like it.

Mr. Monk estimated a majority of civil servants will receive between $17 and $20 a month extra as a result of the pay boost. Persons in the lowest-salaried groups will receive at least $10 a month. Professionally-trained people in government service will receive increases over and above the $20 maximum set for office workers. All increases are retroactive to April 1.

The total increase in salaries will cost the provincial treasury about $2,100,000 per year.

Most clerks, stenographers and other government workers were generally satisfied by the terms of the settlement, although some had hoped for the 15 per cent increase originally asked for by the civil servants' bargaining committee.

Others were disappointed that the settlement made no provision for a five-day week or three weeks' annual holiday with pay. Both points were discussed early in negotiations.

The exhibition, held under sponsorship of the B.C. Indian Arts and Welfare Society, will be set up on the main floor of the Provincial Museum and will remain open to the public until July 21.

Articles to be on exhibition will include paintings, original compositions and handicrafts. Entries will be judged to-night by Mrs. C. F. Swannell, Mrs. Lillian Sweeney, George Sinclair and Wilson Duff.

Disclose Long-Term Plan To Give India Stability

NEW DELHI (AP)—A special commission headed by Prime Minister Nehru announced today its recommendations for a five-year plan to give India economic and social stability. It includes proposals for birth control to cut India's vast population growth and so ease recurring food shortages.

The commission, which worked since March, 1950, to produce the 344-page report, proposes the spending of 17,930,000,000 rupees ($3,765,300,000) to spur India's advance toward betterment of her agricultural and industrial position and her national standard of living. The report now is thrown open to discussion before preparation of the final framework on which the economic structure will be based for the next five years.

The report recommended, as a means of curbing the population growth—the increase is estimated at 5,000,000 a year—that the state provide facilities for sterilization or the giving of contraceptive advice on medical grounds.

"India's food problem is not a temporary disequilibrium between supply and demand—it is a manifestation of the continually growing pressure of the population on the food supply," the report said. "It has therefore to be resolved not through short-term expedients but through careful and sustained application of relatively long-term measures."

India's population in 1941 was nearly 300,000,000. The report estimates that it will be 383,000,000 in 1956 at the present rate of growth.

Neither the Hindu nor the Moslem religion prohibit birth control but many of India's people oppose it, for superstitious or other reasons.

Premier Will Attend Huge Dam Opening

Premier Byron Johnson has accepted an invitation to go to Alberta to be with premiers of the three prairie provinces at the opening on July 16 of St. Mary's Dam, just completed near Letbridge as part of a federal government farm reclamation project.

Mr. Johnson will fly from Vancouver on Saturday, July 14, and will return to his office in Victoria on Thursday, July 19.

St. Mary's Dam is the largest earth-fill dam ever constructed in Canada and will play a major part in storing water for irrigation of a large tract of land which had been considered too dry to farm.

The irrigation program is being carried out by the federal government's Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Service. A number of war-veteran farmers will be settled in the reclaimed areas.

Federal Agriculture Minister James Gardiner will officiate at the opening of the dam.

And they called it—

REDFERN STREET

BEHIND THE SIGNS
WITH Jim Nesbitt

Redfern Street, off Oak Bay Avenue, just west of Foul Bay Road, was named to commemorate a one-time Mayor of Victoria. Charles E. Redfern was a jeweler and watchmaker in England. When he was 34, he tired of conventional life in London. British Columbia was in the news then, and Mr. Redfern decided to come here. He intended to search for gold in the Cariboo.

He took passage around Cape Horn in the steamer Tynemouth, the famous "hulid ship" which reached Victoria in September of 1922. Mr. Redfern found Victoria booming, and instead of going to the Cariboo he started a jewelry and watchmaking business here. He liked Victoria, and sent for his mother and sisters, and established them in a house on Belleville Street.

Meanwhile, he built a handsome new building on Government Street and put a big clock over the front door—a clock that for years was a landmark in Victoria. He married, and went into civic politics. In 1974 and 1977 he was an alderman and in 1983 the Mayor. He was defeated for the Mayorship several times, but served as Chief Magistrate in 1907, '08 and '09.

He and his wife had six daughters and three sons. Mrs. Redfern died in 1950, and he died, a very old man, in 1950.

WHAT'S YOUR OPINION?

By DON INGHAM and IRVIN STRICKLAND

Why does the circus appeal to people?

Donald MacDonald, C.N. train dispatcher, Cloverdale, B.C. "Most people go to a circus strictly for the fun."

particular that appeals to people. We don't see many good circuses here. There's only a good one through about once every two or three years."

Gladys Keighley, waitress at Argosy Coffee Shop, 475 Atkins Road, Langford — "I think the trapeze performers appeal to me most. I think they are very skilful and clever. The grace and the balance with which some of them perform is just marvelous. I must admit, I despise the noise and clatter and the smell of popcorn that you find at a circus, but, at the same time, those trapeze artists are worth going to see."

Diekie Ransen, aged 12, 736 Kings Road — "The animals are the best thing, I guess. The lions particularly. I enjoy watching them do tricks. And the monkeys are usually funny and make you laugh. Another good thing about the circus is that you eat lots of popcorn and candy. I've seen the last few circuses that have come here and I've enjoyed them very much. I'm not going to miss the one that's coming if I can help it."

Mrs. William A. Walker, clerk at Menzies Street Safeway Store, 1035 Meares Street — "To be quite truthful, I don't find anything especially appealing about a circus. I say once you've seen one circus you've seen them all. Of course, a real good circus is worth seeing. But then, it all depends on what sort of entertainment you like. Children get the most fun out of a circus. As a matter of fact, the younger they are, the more they seem to get out of it. I know I was keen about circuses when I was little."

Larry Montgomery, aged 13, 633 Cornwall Street — "I enjoy most the trapeze artists. I saw a circus last year which had all sorts of wild animals in it, but it didn't have any trapeze artists. That's why I want to go and see the Clyde Beatty circus that's coming to town. I want to see the animals again, you understand, but I want most to see the trapeze artists. They do their tricks way up in the air."

Charles Brand, proprietor of Brand's Coffee Shop, 403 Bay Street — "A circus appeals mostly to the young people, who read about circuses in books and things. There needs to be a proper place for holding circuses around here. It's no good trying to set them up right in the city. I think the animals are the main attraction. When I was a kid, I remember we used to follow the elephants for miles. Some people complain about all the money a circus takes out of a city, but I think that's more than compensated by the enjoyment it provides. A good circus gives the kids some good, clean fun."

Carol Potts, age 13, 468 Kingston Street — "I went to a circus a long time ago but I don't remember much about it. I think, though, I'd like the acrobats best. I can't do any balancing tricks myself, but I enjoy watching others who can. I think I would like the clowns, too, provided they were funny."

Promising Indian Artist

To Work In Fish Cannery

One of Canada's most promising young Indian artists, Judith Morgan, has left Victoria to work in a cannery factory at Nanaimo, near Prince Rupert, so she can earn enough money to continue with her college education.

The attractive daughter of a Kitwanga chief, Skeena River, attended normal school here this year and has applied for a scholarship at Cottey College, Nevada, Mo. If she receives the award she will study to become a teacher and will continue to study art at the same time.

Judith held no fears of damaging her hands in the cannery, which would destroy her chances of becoming a great Canadian artist. In other years she has worked in cannery factories during the summer months to earn some pocket money for her upkeep.

Judith's abilities as an artist were discovered a few years ago by George Sinclair, Victoria artist, who encouraged her to paint.

The Indian girl's painting received the praise of Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, chairman of the Royal Commission on Arts, Letters and Sciences, who viewed her works while in Victoria in October, 1949.

Since then 20 of her paintings have hung in the National Museum in Ottawa and a few have been acquired by the National Art Gallery.

RESCUED BY 10-YEAR-OLD

Kitten Now Has 10 Lives

If the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals awarded citations one would go today to 10-year-old Blair McLean, son of Rev. and Mrs. J. L. W. McLean, 63 Linden.

Blair has been lauded by Mrs. H. M. Kerswell, secretary of the Victoria branch of the S.P.C.A., for wading into the sea off Dallas Road up to his shoulders to rescue a little kitten.

An oldie, boy, aged 12, was seen to toss a box containing the kitten over the high bank and watch it rolling down to the beach below. He then threw it into the water and proceeded to stone the box. Young Blair came to the kitten's rescue and took it home for the night and next day took it to the S.P.C.A. shelter.

Prepaid small traffic fines in court today totaled $216.50.

Bridal Pair On Oregon Honeymoon

Motoring through Oregon State are recent newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Alfred Richards, who were married in Central Baptist Church by Dr. J. B. Rowell.

The bride is the former Constance Eileen Orr, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fleming E. Orr, Dean Park Road, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Richards, Browning Street.

Traditional wedding music was heard as the bride entered the church in a gown of white fine velvety sheer fashioned with nylon yoke and the crinoline skirt that fell in soft folds extending to a train. A coronet of orange blossoms held her veil of illusion net. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls. A cascade bouquet of fragrant gardenias and pink rosebuds with stephanotis completed her bridal ensemble. Mr. Orr gave his daughter in marriage.

In her role as matron of honor, Mrs. George Larsen wore a rose taffeta gown, bandeau of pastel blue net and carried a Colonial bouquet of pink carnations and blue scabiosa. Miss Carol Richards, sister of the groom, wore a gown of palest green taffeta, floral headdress and bouquet of pink carnations.

Best man was Ted Hinde, and ushers were Brian Orr, the bride's brother; John Danielson, Cliff Salmond and Clinton Holder.

Miss Phyllis Hick played the wedding music.

Parents of the bridal pair assisted in receiving guests at reception in church hall where the bride's table was set with bowls of flowers, lighted white candles in silver holders and a three-tier cake. The toast was proposed by N. Phillips.

For travel in the bride's motorists are Ted Hinde, and ushers were Brian Orr, the bride's brother; John Danielson, Cliff Salmond and Clinton Holder.

RC.M.P. today advised motorists not to leave money and valuables in their parked cars at Thetis Lake following Sunday's car break-in that netted a thief two wallets containing $44.

Stolen from the car owned by Kenneth Lapham, 1123 Wychbury Avenue, the wallets were the property of Ritchie Jenks, Esquimalt Road, and Allan Phillips, Dunsuir Road. The wallets were later found, minus money. There have been similar robberies in past summers at the popular lake.

This issue, along with a proposal of increased vacation allowances, was argued at a meeting Friday, but no conclusion was reached.

Smoke Still Heavy; Mill Owners Warned

Stringent Anti-Smoke By-Law May Be Put Before City Council

Cabinet Will Hear Brief on E. & N.

The B.C. cabinet is to be asked to take steps to have better engine and freight service provided by the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway, the Daily Times learned today.

The cabinet has agreed to hear the matter from the Vancouver Island Ratepayers' Association next week. The government council has invited the ratepayers' association to send a delegation to Victoria to discuss the matter at 11 a.m. Friday, July 20.

Drive George Bonner of Cobble Hill, president of the ratepayers' association, told the Daily Times on the brief to be presented to the cabinet was near completion.

Bonner said the cabinet has held of the inadequacy of present service, and would be required to require the railway to present "service in good form" as required by the original act signed by the company years ago.

The E. & N. was given $750,000 by the federal government to build the island railway. Mr. Lethbridge said, "One of the seasons the railway was to develop the island. At the present time, the railway is not doing that. It is not operating in the interests of the people."

Mr. Bonner said the provincial government should be in a position to require better service from the railway if not by direct negotiation, through the federal Board of Transport Commissioners.

Representatives of the Vancouver Island Municipal Association would likely accompany the ratepayers' delegation on its visit to the cabinet. Mr. Bonner included. Mayor Earle C. Westwood, of Nanaimo, president of the municipal association, has already acted on previous occasions on behalf of the ratepayers' cause.

City Trades Licenses Go Out July 15

Four thousand trades licenses notices will go out July 15 for payment of approximately $125,000 into the city's coffers for the six-month period to Dec. 31, William Wallis, license inspector, said today.

Trades licenses provide the city with about $250,000 annually. About 100 licenses are paid in the east by firms, established in Victoria, whose head offices are in eastern cities, Mr. Wallis said. "Payments are pretty well cleaned up in three weeks," he added.

Insufficient supply of horsemeat for human consumption is believed today the chief reason why two Victoria men who showed interest two weeks ago in opening stores, have yet to apply to the city for the required license.

There is a limited supply available and that is used mainly for fur farms," said one source. "Most of the horses killed anywhere for horsemeat are old animals. I would have to chew on some of the meat."

There is definitely not a sufficient supply of horses on the island, he said.

Special Courses Open For Scouts

DUNROBIN, Ont. (CP)—Boy Scout leaders from across Canada arrived here today for the first of four camp courses on leadership training. Dunrobin is 25 miles west of Ottawa.

Directed by E. F. Mills, executive commissioner for training, three of the courses will cater to cub, scout and rover leaders. The fourth, for Sea Scout leaders, will be held in August at Lakefield, near Peterborough, Ont. and will be directed by Leslie Punched of Galt, Ont., Executive Commissioner for the South Waterloo district.

The course opening today, with an enrolment of 22 leaders, will conclude July 17.

"If three or four mill operators are going to buck the city's efforts toward cutting the smoke and cinder nuisance, Victoria council will be asked to crack down on all," Ald. Frank Mulliner, chairman of the city fire wardens committee, warned at a meeting today.

Mayor Percy George backed the alderman up competently. "We can't go on like this," said Ald. Mulliner. "There has to be improvement."

He warned that unless the smoke and cinder nuisance was abated he would recommend that Victoria adopt Vancouver's more stringent anti-smoke by-law.

"If there has been any improvement since the City Hall parley with the mill owners, it is very slight."

Ald. Mulliner said the operators would have to be given "reasonable time" to effect changes but could not set any definite deadline.

"Vancouver Smoke Inspector John McGregor told us it was 90 per cent the human element in the case of too much smoke and cinders," said Ald. Mulliner.

Mayor George said he had personally visited the Gorge area many times and saw evidence first hand of the problem north of the city.

"I have noted little improvement," he said.

Youth Saves Father From Death By Gas

A 47-year-old father, who admitted to city police afterwards, "It was not as easy as I thought it was going to be," was saved from committing suicide by his 12-year-old son Saturday night, it was disclosed in city police court today.

The boy arrived home Saturday evening to find both back and front doors locked. He climbed through a window to get into the house and found his father sitting in a chair. Three gas jets were turned on.

The boy led his father into the living room, turned off the jets, opened windows to let the gas escape, then he called the police.

The man pleaded guilty to unlawfully trying to take his life and was remanded to Wednesday for sentence. Magistrate H. C. Hall asked for a probation officer's report.

First Indian Pottery On View Provincial Museum

The first pottery ever made by Indians in British Columbia is on view at the B.C. Indian Art and Handicraft Exhibition which was opened this afternoon by Education Minister W. T. Strathairn at the Provincial Museum.

The pottery, made by Indian children at the Westholme Indian School under the tutelage of Mrs. Whitaker, has aroused widespread interest among those interested in the development of Indian art in this province.

The exhibition also features numerous paintings and handicrafts by Indian school children, and a totem of famous Chief Maquinna of Nootka, carved by Jimmy Johns of Nanaimo, who received a special award for the exhibit.

Barney Dixon and Percy Louie, Alberni Residential School, were each awarded $10 for placing first in the Memorial Art Scholarship contest.

Other prize-winners are as follows: Junior group, design, A. W. Hawkins, Kingscome Inlet; Joseph Norris, Westholme; Denny Dixon, Alberni; narrative picture, Ensley Morgan, James Josephs and Donald Brooks, all of Alberni; senior group, art: Desmond Peters, Seton Lake; Mabel Tom, Seton Lake and Mark White, Alberni; handicraft, Peggy August, Shirley Charles and Edna Robertson, all of Alberni; writing, Doreen Wilson, Ester Underwood and Thelma Benson, Alberni.

Mrs. Green To Broaden Surplus Food Project

Proposals for broadening her original idea of a surplus food stall for the city's needy were being considered by Mrs. Barbara Green, volunteer welfare worker, today, following a successful opening of the stall Saturday.

Fears that people to whom cards had been issued by welfare agents would not turn up for the food were dispelled, she said, following a check today.

"I am thrilled," she said. "It was nearly 100 per cent."

Mrs. Green's plans for the future include studying the possibility of setting up surplus food depots in farming areas. She said she would hold the free stall twice this month instead of once, as originally planned.

"If we can set up depots in areas where the food is, we could have volunteers pick it up."

Mrs. Green said she was delivering free food until 11 Saturday night and that people were very happy to get it. As the plan progresses and more cards are sent out, there will not be the need for this delivery, she said.

SHOPPING GUIDE

New Selection Of Sweets
For All You Kandy Kittens

By PENNY SAVER

In Saturday's column, I found I'd run out of space and could nowhere begin to tell you about the delightful candy shop I visited that day. You might say I got stuck in the shop... and I can't think of a better place in which to get stuck!

The owner was particularly enthused over a new jellied fruit candy, and gave me a sample of each flavor. What a wonderful life, this, being Penny Saver. The jellied candies are delicious!

Dissolve dry yeast in warm water, 110° to 115° degrees. Compressed yeast in lukewarm water, 80° to 85°.

ous especially in this warm weather, when you enjoy a candy that is refreshing.

The first one I tasted was a marachino flavor, the next, pineapple, then a newcomer, British marmalade. The last number is every bit like the marmalade you have on your hot toast in the first meal of the day.

Another jellied delight is the ginger flavor. Myself, I don't like ginger, too hot for me, but after tasting the sugared candy I changed my opinion. The candy is delicious!

Sum of 80 pennies pays for a pound of the jellied fruits. That same amount of money buys a pound of rich maple nut coconut ice or chocolate fruit fudge, they're the cat's whiskers too! Mustn't forget the neopolitans.

Comes spring and mother's thoughts usually turn to sulphur and molasses. Well, fortunately spring's come and gone and early summer is well under way. But molasses might still be under consideration. If so, you might try a spot of molasses peppermint toffee.

This form of candy is as popular with youngsters as dad's tie rack is with 16-year-old Junior. Price on a pound of toffee, 80 pennies.

If you're interested in the above mentioned don't forget to give me a jingle.

If, after visiting the candy establishment you have a few pennies left over, you might take a peek at the new leather change purses from Italia.

A rich tone of wine-brown, the case is much like a clam shell. When opened the change slips down into the top "shell" and is easily sorted by your gloved fingers. A splendid gift suggestion, the change purse sells for $2.95.

MARY HAWORTH

Woman, 45, Loves Son-In-Law, 28,
Who Treats Her Casually

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have an unusual problem and I hope you can help me. I am 45 years old and deeply in love with my son-in-law, who is 28. I try to convince myself that Harry (I'll call him) is dear to me in the same sense that my daughter is; but I know this isn't true.

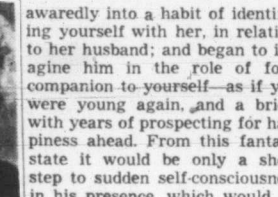

Eve (my daughter) and Harry live next door, and I see him often; and at times I have a hope—of which I am ashamed—that he cares intensely for me; and when I have this feeling, it makes me happy for a while.

Every now and then he is almost rude to me, however, which makes me wonder if he guesses how I feel, and if it causes him to despise me. It is then that I can best get hold of myself, my pride comes to my aid and I call myself a fool, etc., and my mind will be at peace; and I am free of the problem for a while.

SHE IS MISTAKEN ABOUT HER PROBLEM

Dear E.V.: The mood of your letter is keyed to a mournful monotone, with no "relief notes" of any kind—such as references to happy aspects of family life or social relationships. And this gloomy climate of personality suggests that you are steeped in a chronic stew of emotional distress, which has been your condition as far back as you can remember.

Owing to the poverty of your emotional experience, you tend to lean too heavily on your daughter's interests, to give your days some variety, I suppose. Thus perhaps you drifted unawaredly into a habit of identifying yourself with her, in relation to her husband; and began to imagine him in the role of fond companion to yourself—as if you were young again, and a bride, with years of prospecting for happiness ahead. From this fantasy state it would be only a short step to sudden self-consciousness in his presence, which would accelerate foolish dreams of latent affinity and mutual infatuation, and pretty soon you'd be going in circles, in your thinking on the matter, running a gamut of giddy feelings.

Instead of kicking yourself about your unsuitable feelings for Harry, recognize the "romantic urge" in this instance as an acute symptom of general maladjustment to society, and turn your attention to understanding the trend of your fundamental distress. In so doing, you will relieve the symptom indirectly; whereas if you try to treat the symptom as the major problem, you will accomplish nothing.

Spanish-Designed Gown Worn By Saturday's Bride

A bridal gown designed with beauty of Spanish influence was worn by Shirley Mae Harknett when she walked up the aisle of Douglas Street Baptist Church Saturday evening at 8.30 to repeat nuptial vows with her groom, Gordon Wesley Swan.

Rev. J. C. A. Barton united the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Harknett, 525 Esquimalt Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Swan, 3361 Oak Street.

The European styled wedding gown of rich Chantilly lace, nylon net over gleaming satin, was created with slender bodice, lily point sleeves, shoulder epaulettes and seed pearl trim framing the neckline. Pearls in the form of a coronet held the three-quarter-length veil of illusion net edged with exquisite Chantilly lace. Her bouquet was a cascade of pink roses, sweet peas and shower of swainsona. She was given in marriage by her father.

Gowns of yellow and soft-toned peach taffeta designed with fitted bodices, full flaring skirts, mits of matching nylon and bands of flowers in their hair worn by bridal attendants Frances Boon and Miss Lor Luney, cousin of the bride, carried identical bouquets of carnations and blue scabiosa.

Marsha Harknett was flower girl for her cousin, wore a full-length gown of blue taffeta, nylon mits flowers in her hair. She carried a basket arranged with sun blooms.

Leonard Swan was best man for his brother, and ushers Vernon Harknett, brother of bride, and James Burdge, groom's cousin.

Olde England Inn was scene of the reception. The table was set with bowls of lighted white candles and tier cake encircled in peach and fresh flowers. Rev. B. proposed the toast.

For the honeymoon motor to Alaska the bride donned nylon printed dress, grey veiled coat, pale blue straw with navy accessories.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Right Fit Very Important When Buying Brassieres

Statistics and surveys seem to indicate that about 85 per cent of all women past the age of 15 wear brassieres. This makes it imperative that women know what kind of bras to buy, or rather that they understand how important it is to be well fitted.

Yet we hear women all the time giving their cup and bra size over the counter without ever trying the garment on. This is wise only when you have been fitted in the same style before, and know it is good for your particular bustline.

A brassiere should support the bust without pressing on it. Many women make the mistake of deliberately squeezing themselves into a bra which is too small, believing that it will make them look smaller. This does not create a lovely line and may be dangerous to health because of injury to the tissues. Also it is certain to cause sagging later on.

The long line brassiere is good for the woman who has a large or heavy breast. The straps should be wider to avoid cutting on the shoulders. As general rule remember that a brassiere should support and uplift. Try support and it should also give different styles until you find the one which really suits you. Get the opinion of a well-trained corsetiere when you decide, if possible.

One problem bust is the high bust on the fairly frame. If you have this the best solution is to buy bra to fit the bust, size and elastic at the back. In way the garment will not be tight across the back and fit and support the bust.

When trying to develop firm the bust, weights can be added to the exercise routine good results. Try this exercise on the floor on your arms at sides. Hold a weight each hand. Slowly raise arms overhead. Slowly back to sides. Continue.

If you would like to have bust developing exercises stamped self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet "Don't Have Round Shoulders and a Flat Bust—Reverse!" Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Here's A Women's Auxiliary That Deserves Applause

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Women's club program conveners, who may be looking for a project to sustain member interest next year, might well follow the example of a small group of Victoria women who, just a year ago, banded together to help, in any way possible, those in the city who are afflicted with arthritis or chronic rheumatism.

In that group there are women who have suffered from both crippling diseases. And it is through them that the group learns what is needed to help sufferers overcome their pain and take part, as much as they can, in the program of every day life.

The president is Halcyon Carson, wife of Hon. E. C. Carson, Minister of Public Works, who a few years ago was confined to bed with arthritis.

Work To Make Dream True

"They started plans for the garden party—and last Friday in the grounds of Mrs. Carson's home on Mount Joy Avenue, the affair took place.

Of course, there was the problem of getting the guests to Mount Joy Avenue. Mrs. Carson wished hard and that problem was solved when the Veterans' Hospital Recreation bus was offered for the occasion.

The regular driver, W. A. Duncan, gave part of his day off to drive the bus. He was accompanied by A. E. Mourant and L. S. Griffiths.

The dainty cakes and sandwiches were made by members of the auxiliary who also helped to serve. They brought flowers, too, from their various gardens, and made corsage bouquets for the feminine guests.

"It was a lovely party," Mrs. Carson said happily, when it was all over, "they did enjoy it so!" One of the guests, she said, had not been at a garden party for 31 years. It was eight years since another guest had been at such

On her was to recovery today, her every thought is centred on helping those who have not been so fortunate.

Last week-end a dream she has had for many months came true. She dreamed of a garden party for her proteges, on a warm, sunny day in a tree-shaded garden, where bright flowers bloomed.

She wanted children to dance on the green, a table to be set with attractive flowers and fine china. She visioned dainty sandwiches and delicious cakes.

Mrs. Carson voiced her dream to the members of the group, who had taken the name of Women's Auxiliary to Victoria, Branch, Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society.

a gathering—and one guest had never been at a garden party.

Members of the auxiliary who assisted to make Mrs. Carson's dream come true were Mrs. R. Fraser and Mrs. J. K. Cornwell, who presided at the tea table; Mrs. A. G. Styles, Mrs. A. Hazell, Mrs. W. Redford, Mrs. W. Rasmussen, Mrs. A. Attree, Mrs. Crawley, Mrs. C. H. Orme, Mrs. G. Root, Mrs. T. R. Pike, Mrs. H. M. S. Bell, Mrs. J. C. Jackson, Mrs. M. McCallum, Mrs. W. H. Moore, Mrs. J. Jones, Misses Ruth Hesson, S. Brewster, N. Pantan, K. Pantan, P. Dalcarno and Barbara Bullock-Webster.

Young dancers from the Costain-Dancing School, who presented a program of Highland and folk dances were: Claudia Gelling, Jamie and Jennifer Costain, Airdrie Fraser, Diana Dron, Elizabeth and Judy Campbell, Genevieve Reichert, Carol Watson, Laura Philips, Martina and Alison Daysmith, Maureen Usher, Julie Gray, Gwen Walker, and Joan Meredith.

Do Much To Help Sufferers

Adding a final touch of interest to the party was a display of gadgets demonstrated by Mrs. Jones, and made by H. Pott, himself a sufferer from arthritis—with the idea of assisting other sufferers to do every-day things for themselves.

There was a gadget for putting on and taking off socks, putting on shoes, picker-upper, one for striking matches and a bellows for making a fire burn.

The plans for making them were available free to any arthritis or rheumatism sufferer present.

As Mrs. Carson said—it was a grand party!

The auxiliary does more than give a garden party, however. Its members visit sufferers, read to them, take them out, help them

Bridal Pair On Oregon Honeymoon

Motoring through Oregon State are recent newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Alfred Richards, who were married in Central Baptist Church by Dr. J. B. Rowell.

The bride is the former Constance Eileen Orr, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fleming E. Orr, Dean Park Road, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Richards, Browning Street.

Traditional wedding music was heard as the bride entered the church in a gown of white fine velvety sheer fashioned with nylon yoke edged with rich French lace and the crinoline skirt that fell in soft folds extending to a train. A coronet of orange blossoms held her veil of illusion net. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls. A cascade bouquet of fragrant gardenias and pink roses with stephanotis completed her bridal ensemble. Mr. Orr gave his daughter in marriage.

In her role as matron of honor, Mrs. George Larsen wore a rose taffeta gown, bandeau of pastel blue net and carried a Colonial bouquet of pink carnations and blue scabiosa. Miss Carol Richards, sister of the groom, chose a gown of palest green taffeta, floral headpiece and bouquet of pink carnations.

Best man was Ted Hinde, and ushers were Brian Orr, the bride's brother; John Danielson, Cliff Salmon and Clinton Holder.

Miss Phyllis Hick played the wedding music.

Parents of the bridal pair assisted in receiving guests at reception in church hall where the bride's table was set with bowls of flowers, lighted white candles in silver holders and three-tier cake. The toast was proposed by N. Phillips.

For traveling, the bride changed into a tulle of delphinium blue and pink plaid, feather-trimmed hat and hand-woven blue topcoat, with navy and white accessories. She pinned gardenias and pink roses, en corsage, to her lapel.

Early Summer Bridal Pair

Cutting their wedding cake at reception following their marriage in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church last month are Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Frederick Lewis. The bride is the former Charlotte Gwendolyn Mason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Mason, Sims Avenue, and the groom is the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Lewis, 807 Kings Road. Australian Visitors Here

Prominent in the social life of Sydney, Australia, are these three women who arrived in British Columbia on the week-end aboard Canadian Pacific Airlines' "Empress of Auckland." Left is Miss Edwina Hordern and her mother, Mrs. Mary Hordern, who are now in Victoria, guests of Sir Frederick and Lady Maze at their Beach Drive home. Later, Mrs. Hordern will visit Banff and Calgary before returning to Sydney by way of San Francisco. Miss Hordern leaves this week with Sir Frederick and Lady Maze for England. With them is Mrs. W. Woollett, recently married to W. Woollett, former representative of Canadian Pacific Airlines in Sydney, who has been transferred to Vancouver.

Munro-Mierzurak Wedding Of Interest In Alberta

Lethbridge, Alta., and this city shared interest in a Saturday evening home wedding, when Ann Mierzurak, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Mierzurak, Lethbridge, became the bride of Colin John Munro, son of Mrs. Margaret Munro, 2630 Mount Stephen Avenue, and the late Colin D. Munro. Rev. Moir A. J. Waters, First United Church, conducted the double-ring ceremony.

The soft glow of candlelight cast muted tones over the Chantilly lace net and glistening satin gown worn by the bride. The bridal gown was styled with tiny Peter Pan collar, fitted bodice with tiny lace-covered buttons to the waist, lily point sleeves and skirt that fell in soft folds to a graceful train. A cloche hat of fine nylon straw touched with clusters of orange blossoms at either side, held the veil of silk illusion net. She carried a bouquet of American beauty roses and white stephanotis. Leslie McBeth gave her in marriage.

Miss Marjorie Catherine Seaman came from Lethbridge to attend the bride as maid of honor. She chose a shell pink gown of lustrous satin brocade designed with double skirt of fluffy net. With it she wore elbow-length nylon mesh gloves, coronet of fresh white carnations in her hair and carried a crescent-shaped bouquet of white carnations.

Little Dawn Bennett, the bride's niece, was gowned in Swiss eyelet organdie, white mitts and headpiece of net with clusters of orange blossoms at each temple.

Donald R. Munro was best man for his brother.

Following the ceremony buffet refreshments were served at a table set with three-tier cake, white candles and vases of pink roses. H. J. Kennedy proposed the toast.

For honeymoon Up-island the bride chose a pearl grey worsted suit, grey and white checked wool shortie coat and red and white accessories. Her corsage bouquet was of white carnations.

Doris Ayliffe Wed In Exquisite Bridal Gown

Rich silk brocaded satin enhanced with a suggestion of a pale pink hue was fashioned into the exquisite wedding gown worn by Doris Jocelyn Ayliffe when she exchanged nuptial vows with Harold Edward Alder in Christ Church Cathedral Saturday evening.

Dean G. R. Calvert officiated for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Ayliffe, Port Alberni, and the son of W. J. Alder, Hampshire Road, and the late Mrs. Alder.

Baskets of gladioli, esther reed daisies and delphiniums created a floral background for the bride as she walked up the aisle on the arm of her father.

Graham Steed played traditional organ music and Lorna Burns sang "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

The regal gown was fashioned with fitted bodice shirred to form a sweetheart neckline and bertha collar. The bouffant skirt accented the classic lines. A Juliet cap held the illusion net veil which cascaded over the shoulders. She wore a single strand of pearls, gift of the groom, and carried a corsage of orchids and stephanotis.

BRIDGE LESSON

by Oswald Jacoby

Some players react to a long suit as a cat does to catnip. The result is usually more pleasant to cats than to bridge players.

South, in today's hand, looked lovingly at his long spades, doubled East's shabby overall with resentment, and declined to let the double of one no-trump stay in. He just had to play the hand at spades.

It was a poor idea to run out of one no-trump doubled. West would have suffered a loss of 300 or 500 points without much of a struggle.

As it was, West opened the five of diamonds, and dummy won with the queen. Declarer next led a trump from dummy. East naturally played low, and South finessed the eight. This lost to West's queen, much to South's disgust.

West led another diamond, and dummy won with the king. Now South decided that East must have all the high cards since his spades were obviously very weak. Hence he led a heart from dummy and put up the king from his hand.

West won with the ace of hearts, and South looked accusingly at East. West next led a third round of diamonds, dummy played the ace, and East ruffed.

South should have over-ruffed and should have tried to make as many ruffs as possible. Instead he discarded the losing heart. At this point the defenders had three tricks.

East led the queen of hearts, and South ruffed. Now he made the fatal mistake of laying down the ace of trumps. The rest was just hopeless. East was bound to get his ace of clubs and two trumps.

There was no excuse for laying down the ace of trumps. West was marked with only a singleton trump since he had run out of one spade doubled.

Correct play is to ruff the queen of hearts and lead a club to dummy's queen. East's best play is to win and return a club. Dummy wins, and declarer cashes a heart and ruffs a heart or a diamond. Now he has three trumps, and so does East. A low trump gives one trick to East, but then South makes the rest.

The moral is easy to see: Don't insist in playing the hand as declarer unless you can get all the

Victim Of Gunman Dumped In Ditch

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UP)—

A gunman shot a 33-year-old construction worker, dumped him from an automobile and left him lying in a ditch critically wounded Sunday.

The Anchorage Highway Patrol office identified the victim as Jack Schriber, Milwaukee, Wis. Motorists found Schriber in a ditch along lonely Potter Road three miles south of here.

He was rushed to Providence Hospital where attendants pronounced his condition critical.

Island Haven Refuge Plan Gets Response

LONDON (Reuters)—An Island refuge from atom bombs is being planned by a middle-aged professional man here who has advertised for volunteer colonists.

The planner who declines to reveal his identity because "for the present I must follow my profession in London" has had almost 250 replies, from Britain, many European countries, South Africa and the United States.

No particular island has been chosen yet. Nor has any concrete plan for establishing the escape colony been put forward.

But the general idea is that this haven would be as remote as possible and there would be no bosses, "isms," or political cuts. It would be, said the planner, who is in his middle 40s, "A spot where true civilization may flourish away from bombs and bombing planes."

This is the ad he placed in a London magazine: "Will those interested in the founding of an isolated island colony which may provide a refuge from the horrors of civilization send a stamped envelope to Box 19877."

Enquiries were invited to a meeting to talk the matter over. About 85 people, mostly Londoners, attended.

"We stare at the danger of war like fascinated rabbits," the planners told them. "We are like people living on the slopes of a volcano and there is every sign the volcano is going to erupt."

Mink Coat Not Enough To Keep Mink Warm

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—It takes more than a mink coat to keep a mink warm.

Sure, it helps, but University of Wisconsin zoologists are convinced the real secret of a mink's temperature comfort lies in a physiological furnace—it's own heat regulating system.

Headed by Prof. Peter R. Morrison, the scientists are trying to learn the metabolic secrets involved—to make it easier for persons who live, work and fight in frigid climates.

Findings to date include information that the blue fox and lemming are so specialized in adaptation to cold they are limited in range in the Arctic.

One lemming ran a fever eight to ten degrees above normal and died of heat prostration at an air temperature of only 77 degrees.

The smaller animals run the most danger of freezing, the experts found. They have less heat-producing tissue in relation to surface area exposed to low temperatures, and heat-conservation

He said he did not want a community dedicated to any particular religion or political belief. "But it would be our duty to keep alive all that is best in our common inheritance."

He thought an international colony would be a good thing—"but the colonists would have to leave national politics and prejudices behind."

A questionnaire was circulated asking:

"Have you any definite ideas about the situation of the proposed colony? Are you willing to buy a lot? Have a house built? Would you be able to keep yourself and family? Have you special training or experience which would be of value?"

When the answers come in another meeting will be held and a working group will be set up.

The lemming is a good example of a species of this body type. Morrison said. "To protect legs from the cold this animal has loose fur-covered 'leg-o-mutton' sleeves extending to its hocks."

To determine how well fur skins protect animals from frigid blasts, the zoologists devised metal casts over which the hides are fitted. Using electric heaters, the scientists are able to learn how efficiently fur types insulate from outside cold.

Eight Rescued After Wreck Of Cruiser In Chesapeake Bay

DEALE, Md. (UP)—Four young women and four youths, who tied themselves together and swam for hours in choppy Chesapeake Bay waters after their cabin cruiser broke up, were rescued today.

A ninth survivor, Philip Klosky, 23, Washington, D.C., touched off the wide search for the others Sunday night by swimming almost two and a half miles to the shore and giving the alarm.

Although exhausted, the youth refused medical aid and jumped into a boat to help in the search. His fiancée, Rita McDonald, of Washington, D.C., was among the eight out in the white-capped waters.

"I've got to get out there, I've got to get out there," Klosky told those who tried to detain him. Miss McDonald credited her fiancée and Victor Fortwengler, both former navy sailors, for their "cool-headed instructions" when the cruiser began breaking up for saving their lives.

"The girls were put over the side first with life preservers and the boys handed us a tow line," Miss McDonald said. "Then they came over the side. We all clung to the tow line."

"When we began drifting fast with the tide, Philip decided to swim to shore and get help."

LONDON (CP)—Charles Harrison, 48, crossed the English Channel in two canoes powered by an outboard motor.

Here's One Actress Trying Stage Production Revival

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Every body talks about the sad state of the stage, but nobody ever does anything about it. Nobody except a few tireless people like Ann Lee.

Denise Darcel Has Divorce Plans

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—French film actress Denise Darcel, who said she thinks she wants a divorce from Peter Crosby, was on her way to New York today to make sure.

She said she would meet Crosby, a Washington socialite, to talk it over, but added: "He hurt me a lot and something has gone out of my heart."

Miss Darcel said she may file suit for divorce when she returns here next month.

three with the Lunts in "O Mistress Mine". Like many Broadway players, she spent her summers in the sticks, playing the summer theatres.

The salaries are less than on Broadway, but enough to live on. Three years ago, Miss Lee took a departure from the usual summer theatre circuit in the east. She went to Santa Fe, N.M., and raised enough money to build a 250-seat theatre. For the first season, she imported a group of players directly from New York.

"We were an immediate success," she told me.

The success of the playhouse prompted expansion. The company played five nights weekly in Santa Fe, plus a night in Albuquerque and another at Los Alamos atomic centre.

A year ago Miss Lee branched out further in bringing theatre to the southwest. She helped establish a winter season at the Sombrero Theatre in Phoenix. It was also a success.

"We were lucky in having Hollywood players to draw on for leading roles," she said. "They know we can't pay big salaries and they are willing to work for a minimum for the experience and a vacation from the movies."

Among the players who have worked for Miss Lee: Cesar Romero, Diana Lynn, Mickey Rooney, William Bendix, Guy Madison, Zasu Pitts, Kirk Douglas played in "Detective Story," as preparation for doing the film version.

Now that her two theatres are well under way, Miss Lee is tending to her own career. She is playing her first film role, in "Boots Malone" with William Holden.

CAPSLER REVIEW

"Captain Horatio Hornblower" is excellent adventure stuff. As with all such films, the dialogue and action can be stilted at times. But there is enough eye-catching excitement and color to offset that. Gregory Peck supplies the proper dash and authenticity as the remarkable 18th century skipper, and Virginia Mayo is decorative.

May Overcome Smells From Pulp Mills

Tests currently being undertaken by the B.S. Research Council may soon provide a means of overcoming unpleasant odors from pulp mills.

Dr. S. E. Maddigan, council director, recently installed special test equipment on a small pulp unit at the Port Alberni mill of Bledel, Stewart and Welch Ltd. The equipment, designed to oxidize the "black liquor" which develops during the pulp-making process, has proved itself capable of eliminating more than 90 per cent of the odorous materials to be found in the liquor.

More definite results on the extent to which odor can be reduced will be known when further tests are completed at the end of the month.

The experiments to overcome the pulp smell are being jointly financed by the research council and a group of Canadian pulp firms.

If the experiments prove successful, residents of Nanaimo will stand to benefit greatly since there have been regular complaints about the smell which has prevailed since the H. R. MacMillan Export Company opened its big Harmac pulp plant close to that city last fall.

Rita Has No Thought Of Seeking Reconciliation

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Rita Hayworth will meet tomorrow with her attorney, Charles Yoren, to discuss details of her impending divorce.

Rita insisted today that there was no chance of a reconciliation with the Prince, although the two attorneys hinted when they arrived in New York from France this week-end that they might try to patch things up between the former movie star and her Moslem husband.

Her attorney, Bartley Crpm, and Aly's lawyer, Charles Yoren, are expected to arrive here Tuesday.

Meanwhile, Rita let it be known that she was in the market for a home she will occupy after divorcing the Prince.

Her father, dancing teacher Eduardo Cansino, visited her on Sunday in her bungalow at exclusive Beverly Hills hotel for the first time since she deserted stardom to marry Aly in Europe.

Virginia Hill Plans To Fight Seizure Of Home

SPOKANE, Wash. (UP)—Virginia Hill, who admits that her underworld "friends" supported her with gifts of thousands of dollars, wondered today how to raise $160,000 to get her home out of the government's clutches.

"I ain't got the money," said the redhead who left an Alabama farm to become a close friend of the nation's top gangsters.

The Treasury Department seized her $35,000 house and most of her personal effects Saturday as security against $160,000 in taxes the revenue bureau wants to collect from her.

A federal agent moved into the house while she flew back here Saturday from a mysterious trip to El Paso, Tex., on the Mexican border, skirmishing with reporters all along the route.

Miss Hill was forced to move to a motel until the tax claim is settled.

Miss Hill said she'll fight the government lien against her possessions. The government claims she paid no taxes from 1940 to 1947. That, she said, was because she had no income but lived on "gifts" from several persons in the gambling underworld.

Wonderful Nonsense

Mona Freeman is telling apologetic Edward Arnold why she's in night court, instead of doing her homework. The concerned onlooker wearing an improvised sarong is Billy De Wolfe, and the vehicle for this wonderful nonsense is Paramount's "Dear Brat," now showing at the Capitol Theatre.

U.B.C. Theatre Will Present Shaw Play

VANCOUVER—U.B.C.'s summer school of the theatre will pay tribute to the late George Bernard Shaw with a production of one of his earliest and most sparkling plays, "You Never Can Tell," to be presented August 7 and 8. The children's play, this year will be Maria Agnes Foley's delightful "The Camel With the Wrinkled Knees."

"You Never Can Tell" was never "Can Tell" was written at the turn of the last century. It is one of Shaw's best, rated by some above "Candida" and relatively free of the philosophical and economic discussions that marked his later work. It is a living temporal yam the home that most universal of all conflicts—the battle of the sexes.

Tulsa Little Theatre Director Theodore Viehman will direct the Shaw play. Canadian dramatic artist Joy Coghill will direct "The Camel With the Wrinkled Knees." Sets and costumes are by Clifford Robinson, executed by Sidney Risk and Jessie Richardson.

Former A.L. Bat King, Harry Heilmann, Dies

DETROIT (AP)—Harry Edwin Heilmann, former Detroit Tiger great and broadcaster of Tiger games for 17 years, died today.

Heilmann, 56, starred for Detroit Tigers from 1914 to 1929 and later played the outfield for Cincinnati Reds.

He won the American League batting championship in 1921, 1923, 1925 and 1927.

The six-foot one-inch right-fielder, born in San Francisco, blazed to his best year in 1923 with a .403 average. In 1921 he batted .394; 1925, .393, and 1927, .398.

He built up a great following among Michigan radio fans. This spring he was sent to hospital during spring training at Lakeland, Fla., in March.

On the last balloting for baseball's Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y., Heilmann got 136 votes—17 short of that needed for election.

Heilmann, born Aug. 3, 1894, had a lifetime batting average of .342 during his 16 years in the major leagues.

Heilmann, whose death was caused by cancer of lung, signed his first contract with Portland of the Pacific Coast League for a bonus of spaghetti dinner.

Next Social Credit organizational meeting is set for Monday night at Jordan River.

Other officers elected are: G. W. Neffels of Cobble Hill, first vice-president; George Diamond, Sooke, second vice-president, and H. J. Bruch, Colwood, third vice-president.

Port Alberni Man Invents Log Cutter

PORT ALBERNI—With the invention of a small power-driven carriage and conveyor, especially designed to cut small logs into four-foot lengths, George Hansen has made salvage logging for pulp a profitable operation.

Logs are yarded from cut-over land by tractor, rolled by gravity to the carriage, then cut and loaded directly on a truck. Four men working on the operation produce 12 cords per day.
